A Vicious Report.
Mr. Ford's Recipe.
5 Billion Dollar Infant.
Mr. Budd Goes to Russia.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THIS MORNING'S NEWSPAPERS publish a secret report of the 1928 national election made by the secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, now part of the record of the Senate lobby committee.

The secret report, accusing Jews and Catholics of uniting to beat Hoover, openly accuses religious personalities and religious organizations of voting at an American election on a strictly religious basis.

Vicious discussions and hatreds that have no place in American politics, or American life, will be the outcome of this secret report now published to the whole world.

Henry Ford says people must keep up their spirits, American farmers must develop mass production as American factories do, wages must not be cut, and everybody must be cheerful.

Sound advice for everybody except the man out of a job, and the farmer, who doesn't know how to get mass production out of 50 acres.

Mr. Ford lets the workmen stand still while their work passes in front of them. The farmer can't stand still and make the rows of corn or cows pass in front of him.

But Henry Ford is a genius and may find a way.

Wall Street believes that J. P. Morgan, most powerful figure in American finance, is perfecting an enterprise that will make his late father's big steel company look like a modest investment.

The new enterprise, called in Wall Street slang, "United Corp.," plans a five billion dollar corporation to include practically everything in the way of public utilities in the North Atlantic region.

Steam power, water power, gas, and the great distributing agencies would all be under one hat.

Tomorrow Mr. Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railway, with his son and some first-class railroad engineers, will start for Europe, to be met by representatives of the Soviet commissar of railways at the Russian frontier. Mr. Budd will devote a year to planning reorganization of Russian railways on American lines.

This shows that Russia knows something about business, whatever you may think of her politics and social theories.

In the House of Commons, Lady Astor, born here, objected to reducing the price of the British workman's beer. Winston Churchill, son of an American woman, couldn't understand how Lady Astor dared to talk about limiting the British worker's cheap beer, "after the ghastly muddle made of the drink trade in her own country." Winston Churchill thought it better to give British workers the benefit of free beer than give American bootleggers the benefit of expensive whiskey.

New York becomes the center of all kinds of high finance. Secret service uncovers the biggest counterfeiting scheme in history. One million dollars in counterfeit gold certificates were seized. The plant raided would turn out $5,000,000 such bills in a week, a simple way of counteracting hard times.

Commissioner Mulrooney's New York police having arrested thieves with hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of stolen jewelry in a New York hotel, picking up some of the $1000 bills thrown out of the window, now find in their safe deposit boxes $1,000,000 worth of stolen jewelry.

Dozens of witnesses have been called to discuss the proposed naval treaty. The highest officers of the United States Navy have declared against the treaty, calling it unjust to the United States, too favorable to Japan, etc.

All our high officers demand eight-inch guns. England and Japan allow us only six-inch guns.

Rear Admiral Wylie, wisest of all perhaps, says this country ought to have 70 submarines.

Supremacy in airplanes and submarines would give this country all that it wants, safety from attack, leisure to develop.

Not very long ago, a "million-share-day" meant marvelous prosperity for brokers.

Yesterday, 2,258,240 shares of stock were sold and brokers called that an absolutely dull day. Some of them sat on the floor of the exchange playing checkers, others arranged golf games for the Friday, Saturday, Sunday holiday.

Everything is comparative.

GARRETTS SURRENDER: HELD IN 308 COUNTS

$50,000 RUM CARGO, FIVE MEN SEIZED

Unsuspected Boat Is Captured by the Coast Guards in Block Island Sound

New London, Ct., May 29 (AP)—Laden with 900 cases of whiskey, unofficially valued at bootleg prices, at $50,000, the auxiliary fishing boat Winifred H., of Sayville, L. I., was seized last midnight in Block Island Sound by the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-231 and was towed to the State Pier here.

Five men aboard were seized. They did not give their names.

The boat will be taken to New York to be surrendered to the collector of customs and the crew will be arraigned there.

It is the first time the Winifred H. has been picked up by the Coast Guard. She was not on the suspect list.

Miss Tod to Marry H. Bradley Martin

New York, May 29 (AP)—Widespread interest was aroused in society circles today by announcement of the engagement of Miss Katherine Kennedy Tod to H. Bradley Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin of Sutton pl.

For years there were rumors of Martin's engagement to Miss Valerie French, granddaughter of the late Earl of Ypres. Miss Tod is a member of the Junior League and the Colonial Dames of America and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tod of Park ave.

ARREST MAN IN HUGE SWINDLE OF WOMEN

Handsome Prisoner of Middle Age Seized in Back Bay by U. S. Officers

A handsome, immaculately-clad man of middle-age, who has an expensive motor-car, was arrested at the Copley-Plaza hotel by federal officers today on the charge of swindling wealthy women in various sections of the country.

Registered as Nathaniel Herbert Wheeler of Chicago, Hollywood and Miami, he had been sought by Government officers for more than a year, following indictment in a federal court of Baltimore on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

According to federal authorities, Wheeler, also known as E. Randolph Atkinson, used advertisements in matrimonial papers to form acquaintance with wealthy women and afterward mulcted them of thousands of dollars through the sale of worthless stocks.

The government sleuths say he obtained between $750,000 and $1,000,000 from victims in the last year or two.

Following the arrest of Wheeler, postoffice inspectors began investigating the affairs of a Boston broker. This broker, the officer said, is suspected of having acted as a repository for funds and securities which the alleged swindler is said to have gotten from his victims. The Government men also began investigating allegations that Wheeler was one of the men arrested in connection with a $450,000 Liberty bond theft in New York in 1921.

ONE BOSTON VICTIM

At least one Boston woman, Miss B. Cox, late of Beacon Hill, but now of Cleveland, is said by the government agents to be among Wheeler's victims, to the extent of $60,000.

Deputy United States marshals today exhibited one of the matrimonial advertisements which they claim Wheeler used. It appeared in a paper called "The Doris L. Dawn Club," published in Cleveland. It reads:

"Handsome young gentleman, aged 40. Refined, educated, distinguished looking, lover of

ZEPP HALF WAY TO WEST INDIES

(By the Associated Press.)

The Graf Zeppelin today sailed up another thousand miles of her journey from Pernambuco, Brazil, to Havana and the United States. The dirigible was sighted 450 miles due east of Cayenne, French Guiana, at 5 a. m., Eastern standard time today, going 60 miles an hour and rapidly cutting down the distance to her goal in Havana.

The dirigible had less than a thousand miles left of the leg to Trinidad, or a point at sea opposite that island city. This distance covered, she would pass into the West Indies, where her progress

23 Indicted in Page-Shaw 'Swindle'

Twenty-three secret indictments in connection with the alleged sale of $2,000,000 worth of stock in the firm of Page & Shaw, Inc. were returned today by the Middlesex County grand jury which has been in special session for two days.

No arrests have been made in connection with the indictments but it is understood the defendants named have been ordered to appear at the office of Dist. Atty. Bushnell in East Cambridge, Monday.

The indictments follow an investigation which Dist. Atty. Bushnell started two weeks ago and which has resulted in the arrest of Isaac Hart, a Boston broker, and Joseph Pollay of Lynn.

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 29—Bobby Jones, greatest of all golfers, and George Voigt, one of the ranking best in the game, alone remained of America's gallant array at the end of a fighting day in the British amateur golf championship late this afternoon.

Jones, keyed to the tautness of a violin string in his effort to win his first British amateur title, defeated Harrison Johnston, American champion, in a dramatic sixth round match this afternoon, 1 up, on the home green.

Voigt also went on to the round before the semi finals by pulling a movietone finish to win from W. L. Hope, England, 2 up, on the 18th green.

Two matches like these have set-

MRS. HATCH IS ALSO HELD IN RITZ CASE

Both Women Offer Sureties for $3000 Bail; Garrett in Detention Room

Secretly indicted in 308 counts involving conspiracy to extort, bribery and threats, Oliver B. Garrett, former liquor raider, his wife, Florence Harding Garrett, and Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch were arrested this afternoon.

Garrett announced he would not furnish bail and would go to jail. He was to be taken to Charles st. this evening.

The trio surrendered to Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley at the Pemberton sq. courthouse while 12 secret indictments reported yesterday by a special session of the Suffolk jury were made public.

All of the charges are concerned with the alleged graft payments made by John F. Sullivan for protection of liquor traffic at the old Ritz Hotel.

Four indictments were returned against each of the trio and no other persons were indicted.

Garrett was indicted in one count for conspiracy to extort money from Sullivan; in one count for conspiracy to solicit and accept a bribe in neglect of his duty as a policeman; in 100 counts for maliciously threatening the aged hotel proprietor with intent to extort, and in 50 counts for soliciting and accepting a bribe.

Mrs. Garrett, who according to Sullivan tipped him when police were planning to raid the Ritz, and Mrs. Hatch, who was the cloakroom matron at the old Columbus ave. resort, were indicted on two of the above charges and two additional.

The indictments against them were in one count for conspiracy to extort from Sullivan; in one

BARE METHODIST DRY HEAD'S ATTACK ON CATHOLICS AND JEWS

PASTOR FLAYS ALL SMITH VOTERS

Senators in Lobby Probe Astounded by the Bitterness of True Wilson's Denunciation

By EDWARD L. RODDAN
Universal Service

Washington, May 29 — The Catholic Church, Jews and the "liquor interests" were denounced as part of a combination trying to "scuttle the Ship of State" in a secret report on the 1928 presidential election, submitted by Dr. Clarence True Wilson to the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals.

The report was so inflammatory that the Senate lobby committee investigating the board's activities, deliberated at length yesterday before placing it in the official record. It astonished committee members.

SAID POPE ACTIVE

Wilson charged in the report that the Pope had consented to have all priests and nuns register as voters to help Al Smith.

He interpreted the election of Hoover and Curtis as meaning the government would fall into the hands of a Quaker President and a Methodist vice president, adding that no liquor would be "served or kept" in the White House.

For the second time Wilson failed to appear at the hearings, the witness being Deets Pickett, research secretary of the board.

Pickett testified the Wilson report, submitted on December 4, 1928, had been accepted as a part of the minutes of the board meeting. This indicated the board's approval.

ATTACKS ON SMITH

The entire session was given over to an examination by Senator Blaine (R) of Wisconsin, of the contents of the report, which fairly bristled with attacks on everyone who supported Smith.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Presbyterian clergyman and Princeton professor, was denounced as one of the "tolerants" who voted for the Democratic nominee.

The report listed the Smith support as follows:

"We went up against the worst combination that ever fought together in the United States; an effort to corral all the foreigners to get the united voice of one great, thoroughly-organized church, which for the first time gave its sisters, its nuns, its religious orders the right to register and vote; then an effort to man, and almost to the last woman.

"Then the entire group of wets, the thirsty, and those whose cupidity wanted a continuance of the bootleg trade; an effort to make the Jews believe that they had something in common with the Catholics in this contest, and with the aid of one or two distinguished rabbis, who tried to whip them as a race into line behind the marching column of Al Smith."

PAID FOR PRINTING

The report likewise said the Methodist board contributed $5000 to help defray the printing bills of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who led the Anti-Smith fight for the Southern Methodist Church.

Pickett said this was a mistake because the money was really given to pay for the printing of 100,000 copies of one of Cannon's speeches which was distributed in the South.

In another part of the report, Wilson boasted that the opposition had failed to put the preachers out of politics and that he had made 91 campaign speeches.

FAVORED MITCHELL

Pickett admitted to the committee yesterday that the cost of distributing the board's "Clipsheet" throughout the nation had never been reported as a political expenditure, although the sheet took an active part in the 1928 campaign.

The Clipsheet is a newspaper, Pickett insisted. Senator Blaine, however, brought out that the publication had never been so registered.

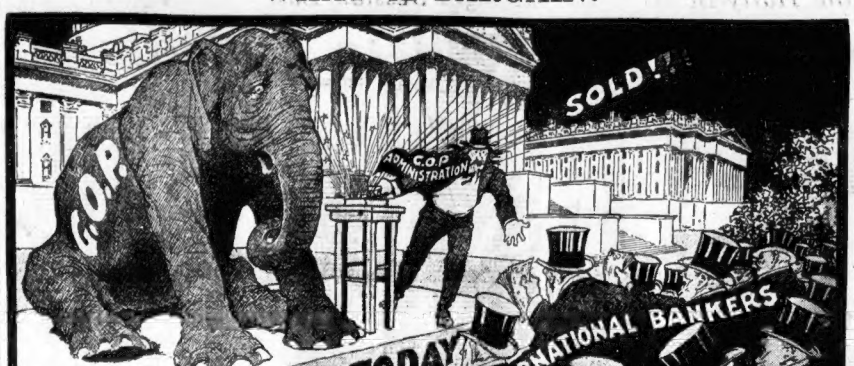
Pickett characterized Atty.-Gen. Mitchell as "by far the driest Justice Department head we have ever had," and said the board had supported legislation to have prohibition enforcement transferred to Mitchell's department.

COOL WEATHER OVER HOLIDAY

Weather prospects for the holiday were not so hot today. In fact, they were considerably cooler than normal. It will be cloudy and continued cool both tonight and tomorrow, but the probabilities are that there will be no further rain—unless some fails. That was the attitude of the weather man.

The official forecast for Boston and vicinity: Mostly cloudy and continued cool tonight and Friday; light winds, mostly north and northwest.

WHAT A BARGAIN!



Nothing sadder than this has been seen since old slave days, when good Old Uncle Tom was sold away from boyhood friends behind him.

Here you have good Uncle Bolivar sold away from the VOTERS. And, believe us, that is sadder than anything that ever happened to Uncle Tom, Legree not excepted.

Luckily, while it is easy to sell the good old Republican Party, it is not easy to sell the United States.

Garretts and Mrs. Hatch Indicted on 308 Counts count for conspiring in the acceptance of a bribe by a policeman; in 86 counts for aiding in the commission of a felony by accusing Sullivan with intent to extort, and for inciting, aiding, procuring and commanding the commission of a second felony in their connection with Garrett and his neglect of duty in failing to prosecute Sullivan for liquor violations.

On the latter charge, Mrs. Hatch was indicted in 45 counts and Mrs. Garrett in 14 counts.

A small crowd recognized them and trailed along behind as they walked to the district attorney's office. Neither had any comment, but it was understood that Garrett himself would make a statement when asked to plead in court.

Four warrants were issued for each defendant.

On July 5, 1924, the three are charged with having conspired corruptly to request and accept from Sullivan gifts and gratuities under an agreement and with the understanding that Garrett would perform in a particular manner and abstain from performing certain acts coming within the course of his duty as a policeman.

One warrant was issued in each case of conspiracy to extort from Sullivan.

ONCE EVERY MONTH.

Beginning July 1, 1924, and on the first of each ensuing month until August, 1928, Garrett was charged with corruptly requesting and accepting gifts and gratuities from Sullivan with the understanding he would perform and abstain from performing as set forth in 20 counts of the indictment.

On the first day of the same months, Garrett is charged with having verbally and maliciously threatened to accuse Sullivan of keeping and selling liquor, the accusations being made with the intent to extort, as set forth in 160 counts.

Other warrants charged Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Hatch with having aided in the commission of a felony, to wit: accusing Sullivan of keeping and selling liquor, the accusation being made with intent to extort as set forth in 86 counts.

Others charged them with having incited and aided Garrett in the commission of the felony of excusing Sullivan's crimes with intent to extort. Hatch being indicted in 45 counts and Mrs. Garrett in 14.

OTHERS WERE NAMED

The indictments were secretly reported yesterday after the grand jury, called in special session, had heard a total of 19 witnesses.

Sullivan, whose charges were voiced publicly for the first time at the attorney-general's inquiry, was the first and most important witness.

At the State House hearings he named two others, besides those indicted, as having received graft payments amounting to thousands of dollars, from him. They were Sergt. Arthur D. Timmons and Special Officer Arthur M. Thurston.

After indicting Garrett, Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Hatch yesterday, the jury resumed its deliberations, but was finally dismissed without making any further indictments.

One of Dist. Atty. Foley's most important witnesses, Chester D. Seibert, of Hyde Park, was missing when sought to go before the jury yesterday and he is still being sought by police attached to the Suffolk prosecutor's office.

Seibert, former Back Bay ticket agent, testified during the State House hearings that he used to change large bills for Special Officer Tiernan, but because he is missing this testimony was not made directly available to the grand jury.

His believed further evidence regarding persons other than those indicted will be presented to the grand jury at its regular June session which begins Monday.

Hearing on the larceny indictment returned several weeks ago against Garrett is set for June 12. In the meantime it is expected his counsel will file another motion to quash the indictment. Similar action with regard to the indictments returned today may not be taken in view of Garrett's obvious determination to obtain an early trial on the charges.

TRAIN ROBBER HOLDS UP STAR

Pasadena, Cal., May 29 (AP)—Marion Nixon, film star; her husband, Edward Hillman, and Robert G. Lehman of Detroit, were robbed of jewelry valued at $7360 and $375 in cash by a masked man who last night battered his way into a Pullman car of the Santa Fe-Los Angeles-Chicago passenger train, the Chief.

Ruby Keeler, actress, wife of Al Jolson, also was in the car. She saw the robber in the hallway, locked herself in her compartment and was not molested.

The holdup man escaped after being in the car for seven minutes.

The bandit returned Miss Nixon's wedding ring when she pleaded with him not to take it.

Zepp Tears Way Through an Equatorial Squall

Special Radio Dispatch

EXCLUSIVE

Aboard the Graf Zeppelin, en route to Havana and Lakehurst, May 29—Running at an average speed of 60 miles an hour, the Graf Zeppelin is now leaving the equatorial regions behind.

We "crossed the line" for the second time in this voyage at 10 o'clock last night (9 p. m. Eastern daylight time) far out of sight of the Brazilian coastline.

Still under an overcast sky, but with weather conditions much more favorable than at our departure from Pernambuco in the morning, the huge airship is "eating up" the air miles between us and Havana.

HEADS INTO SQUALL

When we passed the Equator at the 40th meridian, 700 miles of the 4500-mile hop to Havana were behind us. At that time we were 200 miles due north of Aracy, on the Brazilian coast, and 700 miles east of the Estuary of the Amazon.

At sundown, a wall of ominous black clouds loomed ahead.

"That won't be as bad as it looks," remarked Dr. Eckener, as I stood beside him on the bridge.

We dashed into the blackness at 68 miles an hour. The vertical currents shot the ship up so far it made me dizzy, but we were through it in a moment and again flew slowly.

At 8 o'clock, while dinner was being served, we ran into a short squall.

We caught our last glimpse of South America at 3:15 p. m. (2:15 P. M. E. D. T., about an hour after we had passed Natal. With only four motors running, the Graf turned its nose on a more northerly course. Dr. Eckener seems bent on economizing on the fuel, saying "there's no hurry."

HAVANA TOMORROW

Were we to turn the nose of the Graf eastward now we would be in Recife as quickly as we shall be in Havana.

At 2:20 p. m. (1:20 p. m. E. D. T.) we passed over the city of Natal. A light drizzle was falling as we sighted the important air center, right on the "elbow" of Brazil's coastline.

In honor of Augusto Severo, the Brazilian national hero, a wreath tied with the Brazilian and German colors was dropped from a cabin window. A note attached asked that it be placed on the hero's statue in Natal.

Ahead of us lies Havana, which we expect to make some time Friday, and New York, over which we should soar by present calculations, some time Sunday. After flying over New York, Dr. Hugo Eckener expects to moor at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval station. Two or three days later he will start home for Friedrichshafen, where he hopes to land June 9.

5 DRY SENATORS FAVOR VOTE ON ISSUE

Sheppard, T. J. Walsh, Jones, Nye, Dill Change Views; Prohibitionists Worried

Washington, May 29 (INS)—The sturdy oaks of prohibition, which for 10 years have stood firm in all kinds of storms, are beginning to sway a little to catch the breeze of popular opinion.

Nearly all of the Senate drys came around today to support the position of Senator Wesley L. Jones (R.) of Washington, author of the five-and-ten law, that if the people of their respective states want referenda on modification of the Volstead act they will vote to submit the question to the people.

Five more dry senators to date have announced they will favor a referendum if their states wish.

It may be that campaign year has something to do with this remarkable reversal of policy on the part of the Senate's outstanding drys; it may be that they have been impressed by recent polls showing 43 of the 48 states to be wet—but whatever the cause it was apparent today that the congressional pillars of prohibition will no longer oppose putting prohibition to a popular vote in the various states.

DRYS ARE WORRIED

The professional dry organizations like the Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, and kindred associations are deeply disturbed over the situation.

They are deluging dry senators with protests against any yielding at all, however slight, to what they consider "wet propaganda." Nevertheless, so many drys are committing themselves in favor of state referenda that they may find it difficult to oppose them all later on.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D.) of Montana, who has remained consistently dry despite the fact that his state has twice voted wet, caused further consternation among the drys today with his statement that he was "perfectly willing" to see prohibition put to the test again in his state, and that he would "stand by the vote in such a referendum."

EVEN SHEPPARD CHANGES.

Senator Sheppard (D.), Texas, co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment, who is accounted the real dry leader of the Senate, said he would not oppose a referendum in Texas if the people wanted it.

But he said he was not "perfectly" of Texas' aridity that he considered it useless expense and trouble. Sheppard also is a candidate for re-election.

Senator Nye (R.), North Dakota, and Senator Dill (R.), Washington, also fell in line for a referendum.

music, arts, literature and outdoor sports. Worth considerably over a million in California property. Desires to meet a lady of similar qualifications."

This brought a flood of answers from women in all parts of the country, according to the government officials.

HOW HE OPERATED

Once a victim was selected, according to the officers, Wheeler would drive to her home in his expensive auto, carry on a whirlwind courtship and eventually disappear with her money in exchange for a bundle of worthless gold stock. Not a year ago Wheeler was indicted, it is announced, by a federal grand jury in Baltimore on a charge of swindling Mrs. Hattie E. Thompson of $14,000. The indictment charged sale of worthless stock in the Harmil Divide Gold Mining Company. He was also indicted on the charge of swindling Mrs. Jessie Burnham of Petersburg, N. Y., of $860, but Government officials declare, vanished before the warrant could be served.

Several days ago he came to Boston and engaged a luxurious suite of rooms where Deputy Marshals John J. Harvey and Christopher Ghioni swooped down on him today. He was taken before United States Commissioner Jenny charged with being a fugitive from justice, and was held in $25,000 bail for arraignment June 10, when the question of his removal to Baltimore will be decided.

Naples, May 29—When a babe of royal descent is christened there is always place for much ceremony and celebration.

A particularly spectacular event in royal circles was the formal christening yesterday of the Princess Margherita.

The Princess was born early in April to the Duchess of Apulia, former Princess Anne of France, at Capodimonte palace, the residence of her father-in-law, the Duke of Aosta. The Duke of Apulia hurried from Rome to Naples when informed of the event.

The christening ceremony was performed at the royal villa of Cape di Monte, where Archbishop Cardinal Ascalesi officiated. Queen Elena, Princess Giovanna, the Count of Turin, Prince Udine, and Prince and Princess Christopher of Greece, attended.

King Victor Emanuel of Italy was godfather.

Rabbi Levi Elected to Life Leadership of Temple Israel

Temple Israel yesterday elected Rabbi Harry Levi to life tenure of office as spiritual leader of the Temple Israel, with which he has been affiliated for 18 years. This was the first time this honor was conferred by a Jewish congregation in the East.

From his pulpit at the new meeting house at Riverway and Longwood ave. every Sunday, and by means of frequent radio broadcasts, Rabbi Levi has attained prominence in the community and State.

Rabbi Levi came to Boston from Wheeling, W. Va., soon after Temple Israel was dedicated. Under his guidance and leadership the congregation has greatly increased in numbers and future, a school, house and a temple have been built.

Mrs. W. Averell Harriman To Open Art Gallery

New York, May 29 (AP)—Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, socially prominent, plans to open a gallery of modern art to provide her with both "a vocation and an avocation."

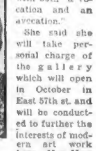
She said she will take personal charge of the gallery which will open in October in East 57th st. and will be conducted to further the interests of modern art work here. Mrs. Harriman was formerly the wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney.

Ursula Parrott, Thrown From Horse, Injured

Mineola, L. I., May 29—Thrown from a horse yesterday, Mrs. Ursula Parrott, author, suffered a fractured left arm.

She will be confined for more than a month to the Nassau Hospital here. Only two days before the accident she finished her second novel "Strangers May Kiss."



Ursula Parrott

More stringent divorce laws have been urged by the author herself a divorcee from a youthful newspaperman. "A decree of separation should be created," she said, to apply in all states, granting divorce on three or four grounds.

Clever showmanship was responsible for a great deal of publicity for Mrs. Parrott when her first novel "Ex-Wife" was published. Released anonymously it was not until considerable curiosity had been aroused that Mrs. Parrott, a former Boston girl, was identified as the author.

LEGISLATURE PROROGUED AFTER FINAL SESSION OF 23 HOURS

BUDGET BILL LAST ONE SIGNED

426 Acts Were Approved by Governor and His Ten Vetoes Sustained

The State Legislature prorogued at 10 o'clock today after 23½ hours of continuous session, the longest in the history Court.

Prorogation occurred 35 minutes after Gov. Allen had signed the last bill, the supplementary budget measure calling for a total expenditure of $3,185,600.

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, in announcing the closing of the session, told the members that 426 acts and 29 resolves had received executive approval. Ten acts were vetoed by the governor and his vetoes were sustained.

It was announced that the Legislature will meet in special session on October 20 next for the sole purpose of appropriately observing the 300 anniversary of the establishment of the General Court.

Shortly before daybreak, as the session went to its closing hours with weary members taking catnaps between roll calls in both branches, Governor Allen vetoed five bills. Each veto was sustained.

Four pertained to changes in civil service laws. The fifth would have increased the salaries of district court judges, clerks and assistant clerks.

Governor Allen, in shirtsleeves for comfort a greater part of the time, remained at the State House throughout this night, signing or rejecting the measures coming before him. The executive council was also present.

One of the last bills passed to engrossment and signed was that increasing the salary of the chief justice of the municipal court to $10,000 and those of his associates to $9,000.

In refusing to sign the bill increasing district court judge and clerk salaries, Governor Allen said the special commission on county judge salaries had not felt warranted in making such a change.

HULTMAN CALLED IN

One of the civil service bills rejected would have exempted policemen from oral examination in tests for promotion. When this measure came before him shortly after midnight, Governor Allen sent out an emergency summons for Police Commissioner Hultman.

Hultman was not at his home, but the teletype from police headquarters finally located him at the Roxbury station and he hurried to the State House and conferred with the Governor before the vetoed bill was returned.

Soon after dawn the legislators in session since 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, began to feel the strain, and coffee, on hand during the night, could no longer keep some of them awake. Many rested heads on arms on their desks and napped, rousing only when their names were called for the roll.

In its closing hours, the legislature disposed of the resolve filed by Rep. Anthony A. McNulty of Roxbury, calling for a grant of $100 to Gold Star mothers and widows eligible to make the government pilgrimage to France by refusing to suspend the rules on admittance.

A compromise was effected on the plans for a memorial to all veterans, based on a special message sent by the governor. A bill was passed and signed authorizing the construction at once of a $100,000 beacon light on Mt. Greylock in the Berkshires.

INSURANCE GRANTED

The cost of the memorial is not to exceed $100,000. The question of a main memorial, suggested by the governor also in his message, will be studied for another year by a commission, the legislature having previously voted down the proposed inland memorial in the Charles river basin.

Through the initiation of Gov. Allen, a forward step was taken in the development of the new prison colony in Norfolk, which is to replace the 125-year-old institution at Charlestown. In line with the campaign conducted by the Boston Evening American for the speedy abolition of that ancient and unsanitary firetrap, the governor added $155,000 to an existing appropriation for Norfolk which brought the total amount to be spent up to next March well over the $400,000 mark.

After months of haggling, a bill was put through and signed by the governor for the extension of the Boylston st. subway to the Boston & Albany bridge on Beacon st. and to Temple Israel on Commonwealth ave., to cost Boston $3,100,000 and to be built, as insisted upon by Mayor Curley, with day labor.

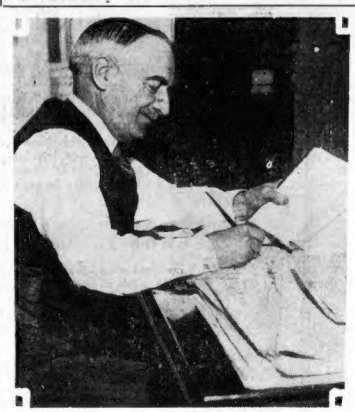
An old age "assistance" bill, under which needy aged men and women, 70 years and above, would be eligible for "adequate" help through the public welfare department, the State paying one-third of the cost and the communities the other two-thirds, was enacted.

The book censorship problem was settled by passing a compromise bill under which a book will be judged on its full text instead of on a phrase or a paragraph.

Bandit Trio Gets $11

Three men in an automobile drove up to a gasoline filling station at 433 Rutherford ave., last night, and while one remained at the wheel his companions held up the manager, James O'Neil, at gun point and robbed him of $11.

After the Hurly-Burly of an All-Night Session Even a Legislator's Gotta Eat!



Here is Governor Allen's alibi for being out all of last night. His Excellency, as you see, was busy signing and vetoing bills and conferring over them while the Legislature hurried toward proroguing today by an all-night session. (Staff photo.)

Fanatics Blamed in Seattle Rum Case

The following editorial on the indictment of several high dry-law officials in the State of Washington appeared in the Seattle Times:

Seattle and the federal prohibition district, of which this city is headquarters, are due for much disagreeable notoriety. Indictment of the highest dry officers of the Pacific Northwest on charge of violating the laws they were sworn to enforce can give pleasure only to the comparatively few personal enemies of these men. And must otherwise be regarded with profound public regret.

It isn't good for the city or the country, to say nothing of the cause of prohibition, to have men so high in authority brought under enough suspicion to justify indictment and arrest. Dry law enforcement methods of this district have been subject to the frequent and just criticism of fair minded citizens.

That is probably true in all districts, since enforcement agents everywhere long ago learned that they might depend upon the active support of fanatical drys in any and every practice, no matter how abusive and violent. The service generally has attracted an inferior class of men. There have been no standards of fitness, no rules of conduct. It has been an indiscriminate and at times a shameful scramble.

Apart from any consideration of the guilt or innocence of those now under indictment here, public resentment has been stirred in this district by the partly successful attempt to bring all branches of federal government service under the immediate personal control of the prohibition office.

Too much greed for power in that office; the persistent impudence of the local mouthpiece of the Anti-Saloon League, and the blank anopsia of Senator Wesley L. Jones have been more productive of unpopularity for this prohibition unit than any of its efforts at enforcement or any of its alleged offenses.

AIR JUNKET IN BRIDGEPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Bridgeport, Ct., May 29—With skies giving promise of more favorable weather, the 27 planes in the New England air tour landed safely here at 12:30 p. m. for lunch.

The flight from New Bedford was made without incident. The heavy clouds, which made visibility poor at the take-off, gradually lifted and when the planes landed the sun was shining.

Later the planes will take off for Hartford, where the night will be spent.

H. C. Young of Willimantic, Ct., the pilot of the Bird plane, who broke the center section stay wires at Colebrook, N. H., again brought the hearts of spectators and pilots alike into their throats when he over-shot the airport at Manchester and struck a tree with his lower left wing.

Fortunately the tree was not a large one, and after staggering through the air for several seconds, the ship righted itself, and Young again circled for his landing.

EXPERT TO GIVE VIEWS ON PACT

Washington, May 29 (UB)—An analysis of the London naval treaty will be made by William Howard Gardiner, president of the Navy League of the United States, in a radio address tonight.

Gardiner has made a study of the treaty and the negotiations leading up to its adoption. He has attended the hearings before the Senate foreign relations committee at which the treaty has been dissected and its inequalities to the United States laid bare by naval experts.

Gardiner will point out wherein the treaty falls short and fails to safeguard American interests. He will go on the air at 7:30, Eastern Daylight Time, over a national broadcasting company chain, speaking under the auspices of the Navy League, which he heads.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Noisy "Gang" Tells Governor Session Is All Over

Singing 'Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," a special committee of the Legislature boiled into the Governor's office shortly before 10 o'clock to tell him that the business of the General Court had been completed, which resulted in prorogation being ordered.

The legislators were jubilant at their approaching release and showed little evidence of their lack of sleep. The Governor thanked them and they hurried back to the legislative halls to be on hand when Secretary of State Cook announced that the session was ended.

Fails to Find Ship

The United States Coast Guard cutter Tampa, on offshore patrol duty and ordered to the aid of the Boston auxiliary fishing schooner Wanderer, reported Monday off Cape Sable with her propeller gone, wireless yesterday that she had reached the position indicated, but had found no sign of the vessel.

350 INDICTED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 29 (AP)—Naming 350 persons, including Ralph J. Capone, for violation of the liquor laws, the May federal grand jury today had established a record in this district for the greatest number of indictments at a single session in the history of the prohibition law.

Capone, younger brother of "Scarface Al," was named in two true bills in connection with recent raids on the Cotton Club and the Montmarte Club, both alleged to be owned by Capone.

'New Haven K' Still Hopes to Make Hop

Brainard Field, Hartford, Ct., May 29 (AP)—Banks of gray clouds which might hold rain were over the field today, but here and there a patch of blue gave hope that the "K of New Haven" might be able to take off for Buenos Aires today.

BOMB WRECKS INDIA OFFICE

Madras, India, May 29 (AP)—The Madras Mail's Madura correspondent reported today that a bomb had been thrown from the outside into the municipal revenue office adjoining the Thirumal palace there where the government has its offices.

The bomb exploded, damaging tables and chairs and scattering bits of copper about the room. Police are investigating.

Ragoon, Burma, May 29 (AP)—Military pickets and police patrols were dispatched to the outskirts of the city to quell a new disturbance this morning.

Meanwhile the latest hospital reports showed 81 persons dead and 382 patients inside and 390 patients outside of hospitals as a consequence of rioting between Burmese and Hindu dock workers the first part of the week. Other estimates said 100 were killed and 900 injured.

One hundred Nationalists who tried to raid the Dharsana salt depot today were arrested.

Noted Visitor and Her Daughter

WOMAN IN TAXI KIDNAPS CHILD

Dorothy Cole, 7, of 406 Massachusetts ave., on her way to the Charles Perkins school, was snatched from the sidewalk on St. Botolph st., Back Bay, and spirited away by a woman in a taxi today.

The child's mother appeared at the Back Bay police station in a hysterical condition and said Dorothy had not arrived at the school or returned home.

She had left home at the usual hour for the school at St. Botolph and Cumberland sts.

A store owner at 202 St. Botloph st. said that the little girl whom he had frequently seen in his store, was walking along St. Botolph st., a taxicab pulled up to the curb.

A woman leaned out, called Dorothy to her and then dragged her into the machine, which drove away.

Norwood Shows Gain of 2356 in 10 Years

The town of Norwood showed a population increase of 18.5 per cent in the past 10 years, according to the census figures made public today. The 1930 census of Norwood is given as 14,983 as compared with 12,627 in 1920, an increase of 2356.

The completed census figures for Waltham show that 922 persons, or 23 per cent of the population of Waltham, is out of employment and seeking work. The population of Waltha mis given as 39,426. There are seven persons unemployed and seeking work in Weston, according to the reports of the enumerators.

Mayor of Waltham Asks Work for Boy

Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham has made a public appeal for employment for a sixteen-year-old boy, the oldest of a family of twelve children, whose father recently lost his job as a temporary laborer in the public works department because he is not a citizen.

MRS. M'CORMICK LEAVES HUB

Slouched behind the wheel of a sport phaeton, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, victor in the recent Illinois Republican senatorial primary, with her daughter, a girl friend and a chauffeur, slipped out of Boston today as uncommunicative as when she arrived.

Leaving the Copley Plaza hotel where the party had spent the night, the car was headed for Farmington, Conn.

Insisting she was in New England on a vacation and that therefore it would be inappropriate for her to discuss politics, Mrs. McCormick resolutely refused to see newspaper representatives.

Over the telephone she said she intends to show her daughter Katrina and the latter's friend, a Miss White, step-daughter of Congressman Aldrich of Rhode Island, the school she attended in Farmington, Conn.

The start for Connecticut was made immediately after breakfast.

Mrs. McCormick came to Boston from Groton School, where she visited one of her sons.

Planet to Be Seen From Boston on June 1

Editor Boston American:

Boys and girls, get out your best field glasses and look at new planet! It will reach its brightness June 1, when it will be only 8,000,000 miles away. This will be closer than any comet has been for years. It is a small comet without any tail.

It was discovered by the German observers, Schwassmann and Wachmann. It will become visible to the naked eye on the above date, but it will be better to use telescopes or good field glasses.

During the middle of June, it will recede and dwindle in size, until astronomers will see it no more.

It will be a great time for amateur telescope fans to make use of their own reflecting telescopes.

Warns of Dangers in New Tariff Bill

Editor Boston American:

A radiogram from Geneva, sent me through a Cambridge friend now traveling abroad, presents some aspects of our pending tariff bill worth pondering. The message reads:

"Proposed American increased duty on watches means catastrophe to Switzerland's oldest, most important industry. Will cause widespread unemployment. Storm of anger sweeping country everywhere. Vast indignation meetings pledging boycott all American merchandise. Effect already felt. Switzerland focal point European public opinion. Far-reaching retaliation and disastrous reduction American exports certain."

Can a nation, any more than an individual, afford to pile up against itself the ill will of its fellow citizens? Considering that the hotbed of war is international anger and ill will, aren't we risking paying a hideous future price for a little temporary advantage? Do we even get the temporary advantage? If a nation bankrupts its customers, how can it maintain its own foreign trade? And if it thus ruins its export industries in grasping a tariff subsidy to a few favored industries, does it not throw thousands of its own workers out of jobs? Is there any justice in granting special tariff privileges to boom industries which have a political pull, at the cost of wrecking other industries and workers? Not to mention the consumers?

In the name of common sense, of commercial sagacity, of international decency, of world good will and peace, the American people should write their Senators and Congressmen demanding the defeat of this tariff atrocity.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

A few days ago there appeared in one of the newspapers of Boston an editorial headed, "Mental Cruelty," commenting upon the fact that a California tribunal had granted a divorce upon such a "ridiculous" ground as mental cruelty. It also alluded, sarcastically, to "that terrible thing, mental cruelty," as something so trifling and insignificant as to be practically non-existent; and ended by stating that "we of Massachusetts would say decidedly that this easy breaking of the marital bonds is not for any community's good."

This esteemed and erudite editor is evidently ignorant of the fact that for over 100 years the courts of Massachusetts have been granting divorces on this precise ground; holding that "mental cruelty" can be, and frequently is, the most dangerous and torturing form of that "cruel and abusive treatment," which is one of the legal causes, and quite a common cause, for divorce in our beloved Commonwealth. "Mental cruelty" is a form of abuse which frequently turns the scales in favor of the libellant. It is not an "easy" ground, however, upon which to procure a divorce in any of the states; as the alleged facts must be proved to the entire satisfaction of the trial judge, and two of the essential facts must be, first, that the words or conduct complained of, injured or menaced the health, life or limb of the libellant, and that the libellee acted with malevolent intent.

It is a matter of common knowledge that "mental cruelty" can and does inflict the most agonizing forms of suffering. In the dark days of ancient punishments, the drop of water which was caused to fall upon the head of the condemned, inflicted no physical pain; but the anxiety as to just when the next and every succeeding drop was going to arrive was the efficient cause of the torture and the subsequent insanity of the victim. That was "mental cruelty," but its shapes and forms are manifold.

I suspect that our editor friend is not attuned to the common experience of mankind.

Urges State to Till Its Idle Acres

Editor Boston American:

Massachusetts, it is announced, will spend $20,000,000 this year on highways; why not spend half that money clearing away brush and cultivating our vast area of waste land? It would, in my opinion, be more lucrative than highways. It would be beautifying the country; employing the idle; making a good investment for the Nation.

We have about a billion acres of land that has never yet been surveyed, and about 300,000 square miles of land in forests. Uncle Sam has 200,000,000 more acres, surveyed, laying idle. With all our resources, we should not have such vast area remaining a wilderness, with millions jobless. It is mal-administration on the part of our government.

Scores State's High Auto Insurance Rates

Editor Boston American:

I am a regular reader of your paper and note with interest your page with letters from American readers.

Your headlines of this evening's issue stated that Rep. Hays was to appeal to the Governor regarding the gouging to be given the auto owners next year by the compulsory insurance companies.

I only noted an individual trying to make an honest living with a single 1¼ truck and he claims to have been gouged of $109 for this year's compulsory insurance. How much higher can these rates be raised before action is taken to put the rates down to where they belong? I wonder if a case was ever known where the injured person received anywhere near what was due him from these companies. Why not competition and let each company set its own price?

Defends Gandhi for Taking His Salt

Editor Boston American:

Some of us would be wise, if we in America did not throw stones at the followers of Gandhi in India for taking salt out of the sea. An address in Boston during the past week at a religious meeting had this in mind.

Early America threw tea into the sea. Go down to Griffin's Wharf and see the spot.

Followers of Gandhi are taking salt out of the sea. We threw tea into the sea. If you look at the motion these two acts are different. But if you enter into the ideals of these two movements, one past and the other present, you will find that they are cemented in the spirit of seeking independence. It is the same in the history of India at the present time, as it was in Colonial time with Bostonians, disguised as Indians in handling that tea.

RADIO 'WIZARD' RUNS CAR IN HUB STREETS

A little wooden cabinet that went "buz-z-z-z, buz-z-z-z, buz-z-z-z!" and a small box that answered with a "click, click, click!" were the motorman and conductor who thrilled tens of thousands of spectators at noon today, when Maurice J. Francelli, wireless wizard, operated a trolley car by radio control and without touch of human hand through the heart of the downtown district.

The little cabinet was the wizard's portable transmitter, which he held in his hands as he rode ahead of the trolley car, in a Hudson Great Eight automobile. The small box that answered with a click was the radio receiving apparatus that plucked Francelli's wireless waves from thin air and controlled the trolley.

OBEYS ALL SIGNALS

Francelli obeyed all lights and other traffic signals and regulations and started and stopped the trolley at will. Guest passengers aboard the trolley car included some 30 prominent personages of the city.

Mayor Curley's office was represented by John Scully. From the Boston Chamber of Commerce were William J. Fortune, vice-president, National Shawmut Banks; Miner H. Paddock, Jr., General Office Equipment Co.; W. H. Kirkpatrick, New England sales manager, American Can Co.; J. Weston Allen, former attorney general; John C. Clair, New England Mutual Life Ins. Co.; J. Paul Foster, chairman convention bureau; Charles A. Coyle, director of publicity, and Sidney Stephenson, convention bureau.

The following representatives of the Boston Elevated were on the car: James Smith, superintendent of transportation; John Lindall, superintendent of rolling stock; H. M. Stewart, superintendent of maintenance; Everett Kelley, assistant to superintendent of maintenance; H. H. Norris, education advisor; Francis Johnson, safety inspector; A. P. Garibaldi, electrician, and James L. Troy, superintendent of safety.

Francelli was brought here by the Boston Evening American as an entertainment and educational feature to demonstrate his skill. He is the vaudeville headliner this week at the Scollay Sq. Olympia Theater. At every performance he runs two standard, stock model Hudson-Essex automobiles, operates a miniature battleship and milks a real cow.

TO APPEAR IN LYNN.

Saturday at 10:30 a. m. Francelli will operate the radio autos in Washington sq., South, in Salem, under auspices of the Townsend Motor Car Company, and at 12 noon Saturday in Meadow Park, in Lynn, under auspices of the Oxford Garage Company, 156 Broad st., that city.

Francelli selected Hudson-Essex cars because of ease and flexibility of engine movement and other mechanical advancements. The cars are being supplied by the Henley-Kimball Co., 602 Beacon st., distributors.

The cow Francelli milks is from the thoroughbred, tuberculin-tested herds that supply Herlihy Bros. dairy with the milk and cream sold at all Economy grocery stores.

At the 9 o'clock performance at the Scollay Sq. Olympia Saturday night, a new all-electric Majestic radio set will be given away by the Standard Stores. Francelli owns and endorses the all-electric Majestic.

CLASSES END NEXT WEEK

Martha Lee Cooking School Will Award Diplomas at Exercises

Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon, next week, will be gala occasions in the Martha Lee Cooking School. Our brides and business girls and homemakers' classes will receive their anxiously awaited diplomas, the reward for faithful attendance at the cooking lessons, and in addition to these ceremonies, there will be the showing of the moving picture, "The Way to a Man's Heart," and a revival of that old favorite, the movie of the Strouts Farms outing, some time ago.

Then, too, there will, of course, be refreshments (I suspect ice cream from our good friends, The H. P. Hood Co., and gifts through the generosity of various food manufacturers). Watch next Monday's paper for a full announcement about these.

Remember that visitors are always welcomed at our graduation exercises. Graduates are, of course, seated first, but there is sure to be room for a goodly number of visitors and we'd be delighted to have YOU among them. Remember, Tuesday evening at 6:30 and Wednesday afternoon at 2 p. m.

REVEALS CANDY TIPS

K. Camille Den Dooven Gives Martha Lee Classes Valuable Lesson

A most valuable and interesting feature of the spring cooking classes in the Martha Lee school was the candy demonstration and lecture given Tuesday evening and Wednesday afternoon by K. Camille Den Dooven, well known culinary authority.

While Massachusetts is proud to claim Mr. Den Dooven as a resident, Belgium, France, London, New York, Budapest and other centers are proud to recall the periods he has spent with them, as chef of some of the world's finest hotels.

Mr. Den Dooven is at present doing laboratory work for the H. A. Johnson Co., of 221 State st., Boston, through whose courtesy we are able to offer you these unusually worth while special lessons.

The candy lesson covered nine recipes for various varieties of mints, kisses, and creams, and concluded with the complete demonstration of sugar boiling, from the thread spinning (spun sugar) stage, to caramelizing.

Copies of this candy lesson can be obtained by writing to Martha Lee, care of this paper, and giving your membership number in the Martha Lee Women's Club.

How Good Candy is Made

Here's Good News For Home Canners

If you're looking forward to the canning season and preserving season as an opportunity to lay away treasures to brighten your table next winter, you'll be delighted to know that the home canner can ply her talent more economically this year than at any time since 1902, owing to the extremely reasonable price of sugar.

Calory for calory, sugar stands today as the cheapest of all our common foods, its present price making it possible to buy 353 calories for one cent. One penny invested in potatoes will buy 187 calories; for bread, 182 calories; for beef, 48 calories; and for eggs, 24 calories. No better hunt out your favorite recipes and start right in on Rhubard and Pineapple Conserve, for example. I have my doubts if you'll be able to keep it as long as next winter, once you find how delicious it is with the breakfast toast.

Speaking of sugar, one of the most remarkable things about it is the speed with which the body assimilates it. Sugar being one of our most highly concentrated sources of energy, all of this energy is made available to the human system within a period of a few minutes, after it is eaten. It shoots swiftly through the walls of the stomach into the blood, and is pumped by the heart to the brain and to muscles all over the body.

Smothered Lamb Big Menu Feature

Prepare 1 cup of diced uncooked lamb, 2 cups of tomatoes also diced, 3 cups of lima beans, and half a dozen small onions cut in quarters. Brown the onion and meat in 2 tbsps. butter, stirring constantly; add tomato which has been mixed with 1 tsp. sugar and 1 tsp. of salt and the beans. Add a very little water to start steam, and simmer, covered, about 1½ hours or until nearly cooked. Pour into a casserole, then add 1 cup of potato balls or diced potato, sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika and dot with butter. Cover and set in a hot oven until potatoes are cooked. Serve in the casserole.

MARKET'S WATCH TOWER

You can certainly splurge with your favorite cake recipe over the holiday with eggs at rock bottom prices and butter equally reasonable.

For the holiday vegetable, I imagine you'll choose native spinach, which is retailing as low as 15c to 20c for three pounds. Native rhubarb is plentiful, too, at 5c a pound.

Pineapples are low priced, fine large ones being 25c apiece. Cantaloupe prices are about the same, but cantaloupes themselves are coming in larger. I even found a few blueberries for you to console you over the high price of oranges.

In meats and fish, lamb and veal are both higher. Fresh killed native ducklings are unusually low, however, seldom more than 32c a pound and frequently less. Sliced chicken is low, too—some low as 25c a pound. Fish, the low-cost protein food, comes in wide variety at reasonable prices, with lobster especially attractive. Western salmon is more common this week and is priced about 50c a pound.

Dainty English Quality Biscuits—
Now Americans no longer import them

THE traditional English "biscuits" are tender little cakes, made of selected milk and eggs, clear, amber honey, a variety of carefully blended flours, and enriched with nature's most delicate flavors.

Now they are baked in America by Weston, in English ovens, according to the traditional recipes. You buy them at your store for but a trifle more than you have been paying for ordinary "little cakes" or crackers, and for much less than you pay for imported biscuits.

Weston's English Quality Biscuits are offered in an attractive red-and-blue package called A Selected Assortment . . . also in a smaller package containing only the particular kind you favor most. If you prefer, you may buy them in bulk. Weston Biscuit Corporation, Toronto, New York, Boston.

Frozen Desserts Add Much to Your Menus

With more and more housewives the proud owners of mechanical refrigerators, the requests for new recipes for ice cream and frozen dishes to be made in the trays increases by leaps and bounds.

"Sherbet that I try to freeze in my electric refrigerator seems flaky and crystally," writes Mrs. B. F. T., of Arlington, "and if I use corn starch or gelatine it seems more like chilled pudding than true ice cream."

In choosing your recipes for your electric refrigerator, be sure that the proportions are correct. Too sweet a mixture will not freeze well and also be sure that your refrigerator is adjusted to the correct degree of cold.

Certain smoothing ingredients such as gelatine, corn starch, whipped cream and eggs are necessary for good results and if added in the proper amount will improve the texture but if they're added in the wrong proportion, they will give a pasty dessert.

Plain vanilla ice cream is the foundation of many frozen desserts, so let's start with a recipe which will fill one freezing pan—about eight servings.

Fill the pan only ⅔ full to allow for expansion in freezing.

VANILLA ICE CREAM
1 c. milk
2 egg yolks
⅛ tsp. salt
1 tsp. gelatine
¾ c. sugar
½ c. cream, whipped

Pour a little of the milk over the gelatine to soften it. Scald the rest in the top of a double boiler, then pour over the beaten egg yolks. Add sugar and salt and return to the fire until the mixture thickens slightly. Pour over the gelatine and stir until dissolved. Cool and fold in the whipped cream.

Turn the mixture into the freezing tray and place in the refrigerator. When it reaches the mushy stage, about 30 to 40 minutes, stir it up thoroughly and put it back in the refrigerator. At the end of another 30 minutes, stir again, smooth down in the pan and put back in the freezing compartment. If your cold control is set low and the ice cream is to freeze in an hour, stir it thoroughly twice during that time.

ENROLL FOR FALL NOW

The enrollments for our fall cooking classes, which will open early in October, are rapidly approaching capacity. If you intend to join your neighbors in the pleasures and privileges of these free cooking lessons, we'd suggest your writing in immediately for fall reservations. We do ask you, however, to let us know if anything should come up during the summer to change your plans, as we always have far more applications for seats at our cooking classes than we have accommodations.

The days of the week will be the same as this year: Tuesday evening, classes from 6:30 to 8:15, for Brides and Business Girls and young mothers unable to come in the afternoon, and the Homemakers' Class on Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 4 p. m. The lessons will be entirely different from this or any other year.

Can You Write a Letter?

Marion Davies Offers Two $500 Prizes, One to a Woman, One to a Man

Do you remember the famous Floradora Sextette?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you prefer those styles to the fashions for women of today?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your ideas in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies, at the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood, Cal.

$1000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

The contest closes at 12 o'clock midnight, Saturday, June 14.

New England in Marion Davies' Contest

New Idea on Dresses for Girls Is Compromise on a Happy Medium

Hollywood, May 29—With the public generally divided into two camps over the subject of women's styles, a third party today made its appearance in the Marion Davies fashion contest.

"Compromise," was the slogan of the new group, whose members favor neither the conservative "Longs" of the gay nineties, nor the radical "Shorts" of the liberated thirties.

With the contest only beginning its second week, additional hundreds of letters poured into the new Pantages Theater, Hollywood, where Miss Davies' latest picture, "The Florodora Girl," will have its premiere next Wednesday.

Representative of the letters from New England are the following three:

"If the styles of today go as far as the styles of the nineties, you must stop to think how many poor street cleaners the government will have to fire!
Dundee Ferrini,
123 Alley st.,
Lynn, Mass.

The style of gay nineties should not be encouraged. The modern girl likes health and freedom, the short skirt is the most sensible for all purposes. For bobbed hair, keep it. The modern girl of today does not care to be burdened with tight corsets, long skirts and hairpins. The modern girl will never prefer the bathing suits of the nineties, for the ones at present.

The girl of sports, did not exist in the gay nineties. But they are just as modest as they were then.
Mrs. J. Waugh,
1 Churchill st.,
Saugus, Mass.

There is always a minority in the majority who go to extremes in styles and by their doing this depress the standard of feminity.
Mr. Verne Josephson,
187 N. State st.,
Concord, N. H.

Ivan M. Wittell, Baptist church organist of Johnsonburg, telegraphed his opinion:

"I like modest dress," he wired. "Not necessarily long skirts and ancient coiffure. Neither lent to youthful appearance. Why return to styles that eliminate comfort, convenience, youth? Hollywood really sets our styles. Our country is its own pattern since the war. Not Paris, but Hollywood for fashions."

Susie E. Paterson, 1130 Fell st., San Francisco, led the party in favor of a compromise.

"Women's clothing of his gay 90's was too cumbersome," she wrote, "while that of the past two years has been too scanty for real beauty and grace. All men admire on women is clothing that is soft, fluffy and becoming. A compromise between the two styles would effect it. Laces and ribbons flatter the wearer and add to her feminine allure. No man is proof against dainty colors and pretty fashions.

"When I wear a becoming big hat and a fluffy white fur, I get a seat in a street car. But when I wear a plain dark dress, I have to hang on a strap like the rest of the plainly dressed sisterhood."

A few of the other letters received follow:

I think that the height of perfection in women's styles has been reached. Any backward trend would be a total loss.
James McDonald,
13 Summitt st.,
Cohoes, N. Y.

I cannot understand how women can be so blinded by the Goddess of Fashion as not see how incredibly ugly they appear with a squeezed, corseted figure and an unnatural-looking long, tight dress that swishes awkwardly about their ankles.
Mr. Manuel Goldberg,
2331 Mondawmin ave.,
Baltimore, Md.

To me, the girls of today show amazing good sense in breaking away from the conventions of years gone by. It means for them not only strong and sturdy frames, but able to do things which was impossible under the old regime.
John M. Knox,
415 Wood St.,
Clarion, Pa.

I wore the short skirts and bobbed hair until last year, but now I'm wearing long hair and long skirts. I like it a lot better and so does my husband.

I believe a man has more respect for a woman with long dresses, because they look more respectful.
Mrs. Mary Vandrasek,
8701 Chopin St.,
Detroit, Mich.

The girls of today don't seem to have the respect for themselves or their parents as did the girls of past years. So, therefore, I admire the girls of the old days, with their long dresses and long hair and their sensible way of dressing and living.
Leslie F. Herron,
108 Barberry Ter.,
Rochester, N. Y.

Green Re-Elected Head of Typos

Leo F. Greene was re-elected president of Boston Typographical Union, No. 13, for the third consecutive term at the annual election held yesterday, defeating Thomas M. Nolan. The delegates elected to attend the annual convention of the I. T. U. at Houston, Tex., in the early part of September, are Frank H. Mitchell, representing the news branch, and Clarence Gosselin, the book and job. In the vote for international officers the Boston vote was in favor of Charles P. Howard.

The other officers elected, all re-elections, are vice-president, William M. Trusselle; secretary-treasurer, John O. Battis; assistant secretary-treasurer, J. Arthur Moriarity, and sergeant-at-arms, Benedict J. Dunn.

When Fresh Peas are tasteless, you can improve their flavor as they cook by adding a dash of Sugar

Don't blame the peas if they are flat. If you could have eaten them when fresh picked, they would have been sweet and juicy. But the longer peas are off the vines, the less sweet they are.

Other vegetables—carrots, spinach, cabbage and tomatoes—can also be made much more palatable by adding a dash of sugar while cooking.

And the same holds true in the preparation of stewed fruits, cooked cereals, meats, stews.

There is no need to deprive yourself of flavor and enjoyment when you sit down to the table. Use sugar for its flavor value in the wholesome foods that belong in your diet and each meal will be a pleasant event. The Sugar Institute.

The certain way to add distinction to a distinguished dinner

MRS. HORACE MORISON, Louisburg Square, Boston

The splendid philanthropic work of the Christopher Shop is known to practically every citizen in Boston. The luncheon mentioned above is one of the specific examples of the way in which funds are raised to benefit physically handicapped men and women whom the Christopher Shop aids. MRS. MORISON, of Louisburg Square, chairman of the Executive Committee of this organization, has been an untiring worker for this charity since the beginning of her office. The charity is a most worthy one, reaching out into the homes of crippled people, training them to construct various saleable articles in all handicrafts. Such work tends to lead to the restoration of their normal physical and mental faculties and frequently to their economical independence.

"We have included Fro-joy ice cream," says Mrs. Horace Morison, "in our 'luncheons of unusual dishes' given for the benefit of the work of the Christopher Shop. Its smooth creaminess and delicious flavors resemble the old-fashioned home-made ice cream we used to make."

TODDLERS from three up, exuberant youths and maids, wise veterans in the art of living . . . these may differ vastly in most respects. But in one, they're all alike . . . in their universal enjoyment of Fro-joy (especially when it comes from the 2-flavor pint package)!

Each week this trim little package holds another enticing surprise. A taste-perfect, color-perfect union of creamy, satin-blended flavors . . . always different from the one that came before . . . always a completely new refreshment!

Never was ice cream presented in a more seductive form. And never was ice cream more wholesomely pure. For Fro-joy, with its exclusive background of finest cream, fresh fruits, meaty nuts and top-notch flavorings, abounds in genuine nourishment. Nourishment to recharge spendthrift bodies, young and old, with vital energy.

Serve Fro-joy whenever refreshments are in order. Serve it at family meals. Three times a week is none too often.

And remember . . . when you want it . . . you'll always find it at your neighborhood Fro-joy dealer's . . . its delicious purity triple-wrapped and tight-sealed for extra protection. In the current week's new Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package . . . your dessert for this evening's dinner! General Ice Cream Corporation.

NEWS OF THE PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

In our daily collection of "fan mail" was one which aroused our attention because of an intriguing idea. The letter was from T. D. Stone, president of the Stone Industrial Equipment Co. of Springfield, nationally known engineering firm.

After commenting that he was "one of many hundred business men who read your column with a yearning for the sea and little chance to gratify it," Mr. Stone makes this suggestion:

"The thought occurs to me that there are many men who would like something unusual in the line of a summer vacation . . . Why not a week or two on a fishing vessel, either sail or steam . . . It would be educational for the vacationist, decidedly out of the commonplace and something to brag about for the rest of the year."

The engineer suggests that fishing captains might like to pick up some extra money by taking on a few passengers.

Will Tour Europe

The Italian liner Saturnia, arriving here tomorrow, will leave New York July 3, bearing a party of 25 Boston people on a seven-week's European trip. Miss Charlotte Smith of Marster's Travel Bureau is now making arrangements for this personally conducted tour, which will include eight European countries. A feature of the jaunt will be a stop at Oberammergau to see the Passion Play. The list now being formed is limited to 25.

Mr. Doherty is regarded as one of the best posted men in the entire country on customs tariff and law. His hobby is his job and he is a keen booster for Boston harbor.

This foreign freight forwarder is vice president of the Steamship Freight and Customs W. E. Doherty Brokers Association; is a member of the Traffic Club and the Foreign Commerce Club.

His only known relaxation is commuting between Boston and Washington.

An Engineer's Dog

Edward L. Rodgers, business manager of the 500 members of Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association in Boston, recently bought a police dog. He (the engineer) became enthusiastic about the animal, but suddenly stopped bragging. We asked him why and he explained that the dog developed an appetite for chewing rubber doorstops and silken cushions.

"Old Timer Says"

Our "old timer" today tells about a prominent shipping man:

"I well recall the days when Bob Peabody was a purser on the Ward Line. This 'Cal Coolidge of the waterfront' once used his native New England diplomatic power in putting down a small revolution in Havana. Today this member of the firm of Rogers & Webb may be seen every Saturday on the starting line at Marblehead."

Bostonians Afloat

Among the New Englanders returning to New York on the Europa were:

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McIntyre, Mrs. Edward F. Stevens, David Hoehn, John Henshaw, Fred Saundels and Fred W. Swindells of the Colonial Wool Co., Boston.

Due in Boston next Sunday on the City of Elwood from India are:

Miss Emma K. Landis, John J. Doyle, Mrs. Elizabeth Doyle, Joseph C. Doyle, Francis A. Doyle, Kelli A. Tunrud, Mrs. Gertrude Tunrud, Master David H. Tunrud, Master Herbert Tunrud and Charles L. Spalding.

On the S. S. Columbus of the North German Lloyd line, due in New York Friday, are these New Englanders: Mrs. W. A. Neilson, wife of the president of Smith College; Mr. and Mrs. Aron S. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. H. Schaidenhelm.

Among the Cunarders sailing today on the Sylvander Lancastria from East Boston for Plymouth and other ports are: Mrs. Harriet Fearing, Miss Margaret Boag, John Kiernan, Miss Elsbeth Louise, Miss Grace T. Wyle, Mrs. Nelson W. Warner and Master Nelson Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan M. Hay, Miss Helen Desmond and Mrs. Johanna Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. Gerford Bigelow, Mrs. William M. Harrison.

How About It, Boys?

We have received several inquiries from young men who want to go to sea, but do not know just how to take the initial steps. Those who are interested in forming a club of New England young men over 15 years and in the sophomore class of high school or older, are invited to write their ideas to the ship news editor of this newspaper.

If a sufficient number of letters are received, such a club will be formed. Radio talks on sea lore, etc., will be a feature, and doubtless a short sea cruise out of Boston harbor could be planned. Let's hear from our readers.

Sea Going Chronicle

Among the seamen shipping out of Boston yesterday for Germany were: Leo Mellanson of Cambridge, Warren Davis of South Boston and J. H. Collins of Somerville.

Is ORANGE-PEKOE Your Favorite Tea?

"ORANGE-PEKOE" is not a kind nor a flavor of tea. Every one now knows that it is merely the trade name for a size of leaf resulting from the sifting process which tea leaves undergo in manufacture.

The "Orange-Pekoes" are as various as thumbprints. Quality depends on whether the leaves were grown, picked and manufactured under favorable conditions and what country they come from.

Therefore, when you buy Orange-Pekoe tea, it is important that you know you are getting India Orange-Pekoe! And to be sure you are getting genuine India Tea look for the Map of India trade mark on the package before you buy!

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—chief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GAS the better FUEL . . . assures continuous HOT WATER for every need

We of this modern age will put up with no delay . . . we demand the maximum in the least possible time . . . hot water has come to mean an abundant supply of piping hot water at every turn of the faucet. And only one fuel . . . Gas, the modern fuel, can make this demand possible at all times . . . at any moment of need . . . year round. Doctors advise many baths for health . . . children can be kept spotlessly clean only with plenty of hot water . . . clothes begrimed in their daily contact with the dirty air about us must be washed with hot water . . . plenty of it. It is the greatest modern convenience for the home. Architects and plumbing experts specify Gas for water heating as the most practical fuel for the small single house or many-roomed mansion. Today in New England hundreds of thousands of homes enjoy this modern luxury. See the up-to-date gas water heaters on display in your own city or town. These new appliances are reasonably priced. A small payment and the balance on convenient terms will place a gas water heater in your home at once. Investigate them before the moment of need arrives.

LEADING POLITICIAN BARES HIS HEART

Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the legislative committee and ex-chairman of the State Democratic committee, opened his heart to this column at his modest one-man office in State st. today.

"There's going to be a big turnover in this State next fall," said Mr. McGlue by way of opening his discourse. "I have just finished a tour of the State, visiting the various subsidiary committees and local Democratic leaders. . . . There are a lot of fine young men, competent and willing to run for office in the strongest Republican bailiwicks. This is an unusual situation. . . . Heretofore we had difficulty in getting eligible men to consider nominations in those districts. . . . Now they are just waiting to ride the wagon."

DRY DEMOCRATS?

We wanted to dispose of a trite but burning subject first:

"Will the State Democratic party lay down an absolutely anti plank?" we asked.

"That's already understood," replied Mr. McGlue. "But I can qualify that statement by saying that a majority of the Democratic leaders in this State are total abstainers. I speak for myself, too, when I say that. Nevertheless, if the other chap wants a drink we are liberal enough to let him have it."

Mr. McGlue paused for another crack at the Eighteenth Amendment.

"All this dry business is a hocus-pocus. It's making a lot of hypocrites of many people who are otherwise rather decent. Of course, all the bootleggers and hagmen will vote for the dry candidates. The people are rather sick of all this shilly-shallying. The time has come when candidates for public office must tell the electorate what they stand for. The young people are waking up—we have a lot of young people's Democratic clubs over the State. The political lethargy which existed some time ago has vanished—young men and young women want to know what's up. They are interested in the economic issues, too."

PLATFORM STARS

We broached the subject of political oratory. What has the Democratic party in the way of platform stars? Mr. McGlue waxed enthusiastic on the abilities of leading Democrats.

"There is our Senator David I. Walsh—a polished statesman and eloquent speaker," he said. "Mayor Curley can do his bit, too—a fine resonant voice and a Shakespearian scholar. Then there is Representative Sawyer of Ware; he is a socially minded man and an able orator.

"Will you stress the racial or religious issues?" we asked.

"No," replied Mr. McGlue. "Ku Klux is old stuff—the less said about such things the better.

"There is plenty of talent in the Democratic party. But there is very little left in the opposition crowd—maybe Senator Parkman is the exception. They haven't developed any leaders to take the place of Roosevelt and Henry Cabot Lodge. All the Republicans have gone into business."

Mr. McGlue did not voice the thought, but we suspected that he wished they would stay there.

FIND GEM GIRL GARROTED

New York, May 29 (AP)—The body of a woman upon whose finger was a diamond ring and about whose neck was a copper wire drawn tight, was found today in the Harlem river a few blocks from the Yankee Stadium.

Police estimated the corpse had been in the water two months or more. About the wrist was a gold watch, and the ring she wore was set with nine diamonds and two sapphires.

The body was clothed in a black dress, black hosiery and red shoes.

VITALITY!

"SURE! I can finish that today"

A strong, healthy body and mind always respond to the occasion. Employers appreciate and recognize unfailing freshness—always ready—cheerfully ready to carry on—minus that "tired feeling."

DON'T let a weakened body hold you back. Prolonged, it may result in so-called premature old age. Today's happiness and friends may be gone tomorrow. Has it ever been made clear to you that a strong, healthy body depends upon the right number of rich, red-blood-cells?

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed skin troubles, "run-down" systems and even more serious ailments.

Healthy blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles to every cubic millimeter—those tiny workers which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. Rich, red blood is the body's protector against infection and disease. It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

If you tire easily—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

When you get your red-blood-cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, lack of appetite, skin troubles disappear. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly; firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. helps Nature build rich, red blood. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousand of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. Many have found it beneficial to take a few bottles at least once a year to keep their blood in good condition.

S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and is easily assimilated. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Tells G. O. P. to Unite

A warning that the different wings of the Republican party must forget their differences after the primaries and unite to insure the election of the Republican ticket in the State election next fall, was sounded by Amos S. Taylor, chairman of the Republican State committee at Malden last night.

Taylor, in speaking before the Malden Women's Republican Club, predicted the return of Governor Allen by a plurality of 50,000. He declared that to insure the victory of other members of the slate differences of defeated candidates would have to be forgotten.

So declared that the Republican party lost the French and Italian vote in the last national election, thereby causing the State to go into the Democratic column, but said this year every effort would be made to swing the alienated vote back to the Republican party.

Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, assistant attorney-general and a member of the Malden Club, presided at the meeting.

DAILY ANTIQUE—Duncan Phyfe Table

NO. 108

Once more we show tables of an interesting type. The style is Duncan Phyfe, and the workmanship American of the early 1800's.

As can be seen from the illustration, the piece is formed from three separate tables which, joined together, make a long dining board.

The table shown is the property of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Art, and it is on display in their collection of early American furniture.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of genuine antiques, particularly of Colonial or early American origin or of historic associations are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, 3 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Club Honors Mrs. Sayre Tonight

Independent and Democratic Women to Pay Tribute on Eve of Trip Abroad

By NANCY BREWSTER

Mrs. Frances B. Sayre of Cambridge, who next month will leave for a year of European travel, will tonight be given a bon voyage dinner by members of the Independent and Democratic Women's organization in the Martha Washington room of the Hotel Commander.

The daughter of President Wilson, Mrs. Sayre is president of the organization and one of the most dynamic and influential Democratic leaders in this State. A log in which to write her experiences and reminders of continental enjoyment will be presented by the 25 women present at the conclusion of the informal get-together.

Mrs. Sayre is the wife of a Harvard professor, who leaves Harvard for his sabbatical year next month.

No stiff speeches or after-dinner quotations have been planned. The gesture is one of appreciation of the abilities and efficiency of their president, and the Independent and Democratic Women will gather around festive boards to do her honor.

Miss Margaret R. Cahill heads the committee, which includes Mrs. Richard M. Russell, wife of the mayor of Cambridge; Mrs. Elizabeth MacNamara, Mrs. Forrest Gould, Mrs. M. Joseph Sully, Mrs. William Danehey and Miss Ellen Dolliard.

150-Year-Old Quilt Will Be Feature of Belmont Club's Fair

A quilt 150 years old will be displayed at the treasure exhibit of antiques during the two-day tercentenary country fair to be staged by the Belmont Woman's Club June 6 and 7, on clubhouse grounds and in the Town Hall, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, chairman of the exhibit, will not be on hand, however, to show her wares, since the Garden Federation biennial will take her to Denver, where she will officially represent the State Federation of Women's Clubs as president. In her absence, Mrs. F. C. Dain Drayton will do the honors. Mrs. Lewis E. Paler is secretary.

The quilt, an unusual treasure, owned by Mrs. Harold M. Scheibe, is made from the pattern known as Job's Troubles, a design consisting of a border and a central portion which contains over 10,000 hexagonal pieces about the size of a dime.

A quilt made in 1828 by Sally Longfellow, a cousin of the poet, is the proud possession of Mrs. Drayton and this she will show to an interested public. Mrs. F. Alexander Shandler will lend a chair with its original black paint from the Daniel Webster homestead in New Hampshire, also pieces of silver sent from England to the governor of Massachusetts before Revolutionary times.

A silk Paisley shawl, a large gold mirror with brass candlesticks, tray and snuffer box loaned by Mrs. Charles W. Clark, the group having belonged to her great grandmother, and from Mrs. Fred E. Holmes and Mrs. Thomas Kimball pairs of ancient decanters will be borrowed for the occasion.

Much in the way of antiquated furniture, rugs, lamps, clocks, mirrors, dolls and doll furniture, silver, glass and jewelry will be displayed against an old fashioned room background, for the completion of which songs of "the good old days" as well as reproduced returns will be presented by Mrs. Hans A. Laby, chairman of the program.

The fair, a stupendous project undertaken by the Belmont Woman's Club, will be participated in by over 200 members. Mrs. Edward H. Temple, Jr., as general chairman, announces an automobile parade led by Mrs. Alfred H. Long as the bang-off preliminary Thursday evening, June 5. The machines will be decorated and many passengers will be costumed. The line is to be accompanied by a radio truck and under police escort, forming on Polar st. and Barnard rd. at 8 p. m.

Vienna Sessions Are Attended by Women From All Over World

Representative women, leaders in their fields of activity, are these days attending the Quinquennial Convention of the International Council of Women in session at the former Imperial Palace at Vienna until June 7.

Primarily interested in peace and international friendship, the council is of especial significance since the delegates have been deputized to represent the united voice of forty million women from the countries encircling the globe.

Dr. Valeria H. Parker whom Boston women remember when she spoke here recently favoring the establishment of women's police division throughout the states, is in charge of the race betterment tour which will include France, Switzerland, Germany, Hungary, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland and England.

J. Stewart Carr Dies in Winthrop

J. Stewart Carr, 65, prominent in Boston banking circles, died suddenly today at his home, 135 Grover ave., Winthrop. He had been a resident of Winthrop 30 years and for 10 successive years a selectman.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ella A. Carr and two daughters, Virginia and Vivian.

Sea of New Frocks Presents Ruffled Surface

BLACK CREPE MAROCAIN dress with double ruffles of white organdie forming the flaring short sleeves. The deep rounding yoke is attached to the skirt. (Sketched in Paris.)

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, May 29.

IF WE WEAR a ruffled surface we can face the world with a calm front. For ruffles are the latest manifestations of femininity in fashion and are to be encountered on every type of garment, save the strictly tailored and sports variety.

The severity of the straight princesse line has been tempered somewhat by soft blousings at the waistline, flares to the skirt and tiers, of which ruffles seem to be the logical outcome. These ruffles are very strategically placed on a frock, for their effect can be devastingly ridiculous if they are allowed to go their untrained way.

But if due care is exercised and the ruffles judiciously handled, their effect can be devastingly charming on even the more mature type of woman, a type that is not usually associated with beruffled frocks. And so, do not succumb to the appealing temptations of a beruffled organdie frock unless you are still youthful enough to be able to be blase about spring.

As an example of the charms of ruffles—and organdie ruffles at that—when in their proper place, we submit a sketch of an unusually distinctive frock from Lenief. It is fashioned of black crepe marocain with double ruffles of white organdie forming the flaring short sleeves. These are attached to the edge of a slightly circular berthe which dips in front and buttons onto a stitched belt of the marocain.

The cut-dress has met with some success this season, especially is this so of the models shown by Lenief. One of the most successful creations of this establishment has been the model of which a sketch is herewith appended. It is of a light weight woolen in a soft and most attractive shade of yellow.

It has a high-belted waistline and amusing panels which swing loose from narrow, straight sleeves. The scarf collar is knotted in front and color contrast is introduced by black cloth borders at the ends of the scarf and by a black leather belt.

Society Leaders Prepare for Busy Paris Season

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL

Universal Service Special Cable

Paris, May 29—With all Paris breathlessly awaiting the opening of the classic Auteuil race, that sets the social pace for the summer season, those arriving in the fashion capital are of the smartest.

Among them are Mrs. Marcus Daly, Sr., Mrs. Hugh Wilson, wife of the U. S. Minister to Switzerland, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Lady Deterding, Madame Wellington Koo, Mrs. Louise Iselin, and Mrs. Evelyn De Rondo.

All week the doors of the famous dressmaking establishments have been swinging wide for equally famous names.

At Lucien Lelong's the slender, dark and extremely chic American-born Countess Faide Saint Phalle, who was born a Duryea, has been choosing vermillion mousseline, its creamy base painted with green and yellow figures. Lady Deterding, blonde and slenderly a la mode, also favors these new printed mousselines.

Others of the great women favoring the new flare are Princess Brocatelle, Madame Ancevedo Anchorena, Mrs. Brouletour, Mrs. Wilson, and the lovely Countess Diane de Rothschild, who has picked out for her morning walks in the Bois a sports ensemble in which the flamingo red contrasts with the white.

Paris, notably always preoccupied with the unusual, has been fascinated this week by the costumes of Madame Wellington Koo, who appeared at Frisco's Tuesday evening in a frock eminently simple, but most effective. She wore a white mousseline covered by a coat of navy blue satin that was finished in gray fox.

Attracting attention at the Ritz this afternoon was the close fitting black velvet toque with exaggerated wings worn by the Countess Andre De Robinantz. Over a black velvet de chine frock she wore a white plastron insert.

Evening at the Ritz is chiefly notable for the succession of Paquin frocks admirably devised and offset by Mrs. John R. Drexel's pearls.

Dining close by in a Patou burgundy red was the Countess De Mun, formerly Grace Cuyler. The countess was the center of a great deal of attention because the count had just escaped death when Jean Mackelvie drove his car into a truck rather than run down a motorcyclist.

Mackelvie, the count, Miss Peggy Otis and Billy Reardon emerged from the wreck badly shaken but miraculously saved.

Ball Planned on Airship

By HARRY CROCKER

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

London, May 29—A ball in the air over London!

That is the dream of an American hostess here, a woman noted for her lavish and unique entertainments.

Her plan is contingent on the probable exercise of its option by the Airship Guaranty Co. of Great Britain to buy the giant airship R-100, upon the completion of its trip to Canada.

The Universal Service correspondent is able to reveal exclusively the secret of this airship's novel dance.

An orchestra will play in the main cabin of the craft, and it is expected that the dancing will be extremely novel as, owing to the construction of the flooring, each person present will be forced to wear rubber-soled footwear.

A champagne supper will be served at an altitude of several hundred or a thousand feet as the whim of the guests dictate.

Whalen to Speed New Chelsea Main

To complete a water main in Eastern ave., Chelsea, Mayor Whalen has asked an appropriation of $37,000 by the aldermen who will act on it next week.

The mayor acted in response to protests from business men and property owners over delay in completing the main. In the last administration $100,000 was spent in digging the trench and hauling pipes. The trench has remained open and a thickly populated residential and busy manufacturing district is without adequate fire protection.

Police Recover Man From Lynching Party

Elkpoint, S. D., May 29 (AP)—A crowd of 75 men failed last night in an attempt to lynch John W. Elliott held for the robbery of the First National Bank last Monday.

When Sheriff N. G. Biscum reached the jail with his prisoner, a crowd overpowered him and carried Elliott away in an automobile. The sheriff and several deputies pursued and recaptured Elliott.

VISIT TO POPE IS PILGRIMS' BIG EVENT

By IRENE A. O'DONNELL

Boston Evening American Correspondent With Eucharistic Congress Pilgrims.

Rome by Mail.—To find oneself for the first time among the Seven Hills, the hub around which the affairs of the civilized world turned for centuries, gives one quite a thrill. Bewilderment follows when there is but a week in which to see the city.

The Pilgrims make the most of their time however and on Tuesday, the 13th, they had a visitor of importance in the person of Mgr. [illegible] who was known to many of the party as the Rector of St. Mary of the Angels. Later he made these [illegible] the pastor was Fr. Fox. Alison of Early affectionately as Father Joe has been pastor of the sacred Heart Church Malden before he got the cross.

We next went to St. John Lateran Church, famous for the same procedure and next to St. Peters. Mgr. Spellman giving us the history of the churches and of the interesting relics they contained.

TOMB OF ST. PETER

St. Peters we found the most interesting of the Jubilee churches. It is the largest church in the world and contains the tomb of St. Peter and the tombs of Pius XII.

The glorious mural decorations which we imagine at first to be paintings were found to be the work of Michael Angelo. Although crystal chandeliers were hanging and the platforms erected for the coming canonizations in June.

The Church of the Holy Cross was not included in the Jubilee visit, but because of the interesting relics it contains, Mgr. Spellman took us there and gave us an opportunity of viewing the altar in which reposes the finger of the Doubting Thomas, a piece of the Christ Child's crib, a piece of the true Cross and one of the thorns taken from the crown.

Of great interest to our party was St. Clement's Church, the Irish Church of Cardinal O'Connell. Here we joined in prayer with Mgr. Byrne for his Eminence.

Fr. Patrick F. McGee of Attleboro, one of our party, was ordained in Rome and said his first mass in St. Mary of the Snows Church, On Wednesday, the 18th, exactly 40 years to the day, he again said mass in the same church and at the same altar with many of the pilgrims attending.

AUDIENCE WITH POPE

Mgr. Mellinchey of Lynn and Fr. Joe Smith of Boston, two members of our party, said their first masses in the same church.

Thursday afternoon we had our audience with the Holy Father to whom we were presented by Mgr. Spellman.

The ladies wore their mantillas and the men full dress. Master Jack O'Neill, the youngest pilgrim aged 6, wore a white suit out with a black jacket. His sister here Eleanor wore white entire dress with white mantilla. Both children were given special blessing, as were their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neill and their godfather, James Dicenzo of Somerville. Rosaries were presented to all pilgrims and many other souvenirs.

Cosmo Gilcris of Brockton [illegible] presented specialties in the Holy Home before each general party.

The Pope walked to each pilgrim extending his hand so that each might kiss his ring and then [illegible] to extend his blessing to us and to the entire Boston diocese.

In addition to the pilgrims 12 Boston boys who are attending the parochial school of the Vatican and 15 at Rome were also presented. Father Walsh introduced Antonio Arezzo of Dorchester, Mass., and his wife at closing. He had to [illegible] and wished to be introduced to the [illegible] Boston Evening American.

AND SAYS—

"I Wish I Had Been Its Inventor!"

AND such an endorsement surely means something, coming from the man who is thrilling and amazing tens of thousands of residents of Greater Boston and vicinity in Greater Boston all this week, through Sunday. Francill is "America's radio wizard." During his stay here he will perform many almost unbelievable feats, such as running automobiles, operating a miniature battleship, milking a real live cow and operating a trolley car without touch of human hand . . . all by just jiggling a little "magic box," or transmitter, that he holds in his hands and from which he flings the tiny wireless waves that perform such astonishing miracles.

See Francill's great offering at Scollay Square Theatre—where he milks a cow, operates two autos, runs a miniature battleship and does a dozen other amazing things.

Boston, Mass., May 20, 1930.

The Standard Stores,
Executive Offices,
105 Portland St., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

I want to thank you for a most enjoyable hour spent today in your radio showrooms, during which the new 1930 automatically tuned all-electric Majestic Radio, in numerous models, was demonstrated for my benefit. I very quickly found that in the new 1930 Majestic sets you have something very wonderful, indeed.

As an inventor and radio scientist, let me assure you that the 1930 Majestic receivers, as demonstrated for me, are unquestionably, in my opinion, the greatest advance in radio since the advent of the light socket set.

I want you to know that I certainly do appreciate your courtesy in placing in my hotel and theatre dressing rooms two of these wonderful sets, so that I can "bring the world to my room" and pass enjoyably the tedious waiting time between sets while I am playing at the Scollay Square Theatre, all next week, starting Monday.

The tone quality of the Majestic models also is wonderful regardless of distance, or range. My great wish on seeing it all and on listening to these sets today was that I had been the inventor of so wonderful an improvement.

Congratulations upon the fine judgement that leads The Standard Stores to sell this remarkable Majestic receiver, "mighty monarch of the air."

Very truly yours,

(Signed) MAURICE J. FRANCILL.

Have you seen Francill in action? Don't miss this opportunity to be thrilled by his amazing feats of remote control on the stage of the Scollay Square Olympia Theater and on the streets of Greater Boston and nearby towns. You can read about him in the Boston Evening American—what he is going to do and where. And how he is going to do it! Then you'll realize why we are so proud of his selection of the new All-Electric Majestic Radio!

Majestic RADIO

"IN MY OWN HOME," says Francill, "I have a Majestic all-electric. I purchased it because it best measures up to my exacting standards of what a receiver should be. It has not failed me. It has exceeded my expectations."

THIS is the beautiful model that Francill has chosen for his hotel sitting room and his dressing room at the Scollay Square Theatre during his engagement here. It is particularly noted for its exactness of tuning, the fine sounding bass notes and the clarity and sweetness of its tone in the upper registers. The cabinets, too, are wonderful. There's a New Majestic All-Electric for every price. Unless you have a Majestic you do not own the best.

The BIG House

A Thrilling Drama of Life and Love, Baring The Horrors Behind Prison Walls

By JACK LAIT

Adapted from the presentation by Frances Marion and George R. Hill, A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picturization

Morgan Has Tea With Anne When a 'Cop' Enters Her Little Shop

"Yes, home," said Morgan to Anne. "Where I can sit on one side of the table and look across at you." There it was out at last.

In the first chapter of "The BIG House" we meet Duncan Morgan, a good-looking young man who was sent to jail for his third "stretch." Morgan was a robber. He got away with crime for a while, but the cops were too fast for him. Next we meet Dean Ward Kent. On a wild New Year's Eve party his drunken driving results in a terrible smashup. Kent is found guilty of manslaughter, as one girl was killed, and is sent to the BIG House for seven years. He is thrown into a cell with two others and is saved by Morgan from a beating by the terrible "Butch." Morgan confronts Kent. The convicts start a riot over food. Kent slips a knife in Morgan's pocket and the latter is placed in solitary confinement when it is found. He escapes from the prison hospital in a dead man's shroud.

CHAPTER 10

For a month now, John C. Everett had been coming into the little shop of Anne Marlowe "Latest Modes and Manners in Books — Circulating Library." Mr. Everett was a genial, well-dressed young man with coal-black hair, horn-rimmed glasses, a small mustache, a winning smile, soft-spoken, conservatively dressed in blue serge suit, black shoes, gray fedora hat, black tie and white soft shirt.

He had a passion for reading books on foreign travel, asked many questions concerning various authors, frequently mispronouncing their names, evinced an avidity to learn, and was never bold. Anne Marlowe had taken a fancy to him, she almost felt as though she were his teacher, and she picked out books for him and waited anxiously for his original and sometimes humorous criticisms on them.

It would have been hard for any of the old gang even to have recognized in John C. Everett the old Duncan Morgan. In the old days he had dressed a bit conspicuously, always was clean-shaven, could read a dot on a marked playing card 20 feet away without spectacles, affected a swagger, and could look any cop directly in the eye.

Morgan had changed in other than outward appearance.

Revenge Idea Fades From Morgan

His original idea of revenge on Kent had softened into a certain magnanimity, the generosity of the victor. Morgan felt now that he would win the love of Anne Marlowe, and to know Anne Marlowe even a desperado like he could never think of doing anything to hurt or harm her. She inspired only the tenderest consideration. Morgan's love bloomed ten-fold.

While he was "laying low" until the first spasmodic search for him by the authorities would have died down a bit, Morgan was, in truth, "stalling" his own gang. He had no intention of turning again into crime. His one hope now was to go away where he could live the life of other men, have nothing to fear—and be with the woman he loved.

Before he had dreamed of Anne Marlowe as something completely out of his reach, as something almost cherubic and too far beyond his sphere of life for him to ever hope to find a same level. But, knowing her, he realized that, after all, it was not impossible for him to win her. She was so kind and sympathetic and encouraging—and interested.

One evening, as the late September dusk came on quickly, Duncan Morgan, or John C. Everett, a book under his arm, as was his custom, walked into the little shop, which was just three steps off the sidewalk. He had formulated a resolution in his mind, but he had formulated the same resolution time and time before. Always Anne Marlowe met his dark, searching eyes without embarrassment, and the words died on his lips.

Anne Worried As Morgan Enters

He did not know how to approach her, and his self-consciousness made it the harder for him. Other women in his life had been easy. Sometimes a nod of the head, other times merely a look, and other times it was already understood between them before they met. But those women meant so little to him—even Ruby Barlow, who considered herself his girl, and whom he had "given the air" this time, meant nothing.

But he entered the shop resolutely and found Anne Marlowe reading a letter. A single glance told him that she was worried. But when she looked up her face lighted into a smile of welcome.

"Oh—Good evening, Mr. Everett," she greeted.

"Good evening, Miss Marlowe," and off with his hat.

"You're late today—"

"Yes, a bit—but I'm flattered that you notice it."

"I— Yes, I have — but what book can I get you this time?"

"What do you recommend?" and Morgan took heart at her apparent embarrassment.

VICTORY FOR AMERICAN CAMPAIGN

Mayor Curley Speeds Final Arrangements; Project to Aid the Jobless

As the culmination of a long and vigorous campaign sponsored by the Boston Evening American, the Governor sq. extension to the Boylston st. subway was on the brink of realization today, only a few formalities remaining before actual work on the project is commenced.

Mayor Curley will ask directors of the Boston Elevated to convene in a special meeting to draw up necessary contracts.

The engineering plans, bearing the mayor's signature of approval, have been placed before the City Council, and before the day is out his approval of the State Department of Public Utilities is expected to have been bestowed.

Then the way will be cleared for immediate commencement of work, which will, it is estimated, provide employment for more than 500 men for a period of two and a half

Agitation for the tunnel extension, which will eliminate one of the city's principal traffic problems, was started by the Boston Evening American more than five years ago

So. Boston Cemetery to Be Open All Day

St. Augustine's cemetery, historic South Boston burying ground, will be open to the public all day tomorrow, in accordance with a custom of years. Mass will be celebrated at 8:30 a. m. in the little chapel of the cemetery through arrangements of Rev. Joseph F. Coppinger, P.P., pastor of St. Augustine's Church.

This cemetery, located on Dorchester st., was established by Robert Cheverue in 1816. Many prominent early Catholic families are buried there and the interior of the cemetery chapel is the last resting place of a number of pioneer Catholic priests of the archdiocese

BRIDGE LIGHTS PUBLIC MENACE

The condition of electric lights on Longfellow bridge is such as to be highly dangerous to the public, but plans have been made to provide proper illumination within five weeks, John J. Carty, superintendent of the bridge division of the Boston Public Works Department, reported today.

Boston Tercentenary committee plans high-powered lighting of this and other bridges over the Charles river during this summer's celebration.

Boston has been ready for some time with funds for new wires and new lights, but Cambridge has funds only for wiring. Mayor Russell of Cambridge has repeatedly promised to have funds ready, but supply is absent of the funds for the purpose.

The new lights are expected to be ready by July 4. General illumination of the bank will start, except for the bridge, on June 6.

COUNT, INNES AT M'MILLAN LUNCHEON

Noted German Naval Man, Connolly and Political Chief's Party Fly to Provincetown

By ROGER M. HAWTHORNE

Provincetown, May 29—Count Felix von Luckner, famous German sea raider of World War days, had his first aerial view of Massachusetts Bay today when he flew from Boston to be a luncheon guest of Commander Donald B. MacMillan at a local hotel.

Count von Luckner was accompanied on the flight in the Sikorsky amphibian plane by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Innes, their daughter, Mrs. Constance I. Stevens of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner H. Fox, James B. Connolly, writer of sea tales, and this reporter.

PLANE ZIPPS THERE

The amphibian, piloted by Owen (Chuck) O'Connor, took off from the East Boston field in the presence of several hundred persons who had gathered to see the party off, and landed on the waters of Provincetown harbor 26 minutes later.

Pilot O'Connor kept the plane at an altitude of about 1000 feet and sped over the 65-mile journey at a pace of 195 miles an hour.

Innes pointed out to the German [illegible] the principal landmarks in Boston harbor and was able to indicate Provincetown and the Pilgrims' monument 15 minutes after he [illegible] and turned its nose toward the Cape.

In an interview during the flight, Count von Luckner described his friendship with Lieutenant MacMillan and paid high tribute to his achievements.

PRAISE FOR MACMILLAN

"Commander MacMillan is one of the finest men I know," declared the count, "and I always grasp with eagerness the opportunity to renew our friendship.

"He is clean and wholesome and is an outstanding type of American to whom has been given the privilege of representing the white race among the Esquimaux. Others who have had contact with that Far North race have not left a good impression but Commander MacMillan has become their trusted friend."

When the amphibian came to a halt in Provincetown harbor and had been taxied to within hailing distance of the MacMillan home on the wharf, he and Count von Luckner exchanged greetings, both apparently pleased.

Covers for 30 were laid for the MacMillan guests at the Central House and after the luncheon the Boston party took off again in the Sikorsky plane for the return trip.

New Record in Hub-N. Y. Air Passengers

A record number of passengers for any two days began today [illegible] riding the planes of Colonial Air Transport in a holiday rush on the Boston-New York run, according to B. A. Pelet, general manager.

Although the company does not operate usually on holidays, it will be necessary to make two special round trips of two sections each tomorrow morning. To accommodate returning week-enders, extra planes will be available Monday morning.

AWAIT SHOWER OF COMETS

What Dr. Willard J. Fisher of the Harvard Observatory, characterizes as the "milkman's comet," as it will probably be visible only to those up and about at the same time the milkman pays his early morning call, may be seen the night of June 9 or early the following morning.

A meteoric shower predicted by Prof. Yamamoto, director of the observatory at Kyoto, Japan has led astronomers to lay plans to observe this heavenly fireworks. At Harvard, Dr. Fisher will spend the night in communion with the stars with a fast, wide angle lens camera focused on the sky throughout the night.

There is no preceding data on that shower of comets as there has been on so many previous ones. It is, therefore impossible to predict anything definite about it until after it is observed and its path and movements noted this time.

This comet D, as it is now called until its magnitude and periodicity can be determined and a permanent name assigned to it, was discovered in Germany by two astronomers, Schwassmann and Wachmann.

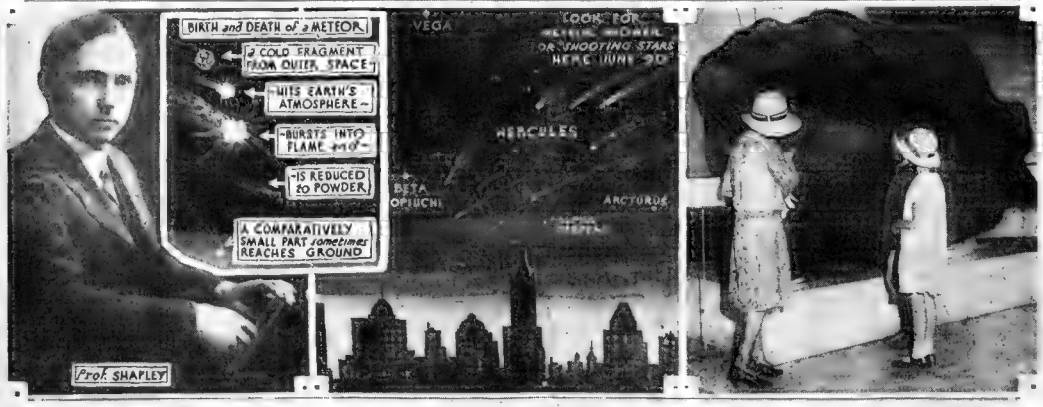
Scientists Await Anxiously Shower of Meteors About Old Mother Earth



HARVARD'S ASTRONOMER

Professor Shapley, famous Harvard expert on heavenly bodies, is acting as the official referee in the battle of the scientists as to just when the meteoric shower is coming. All of them agree that the shower will arrive very late on June 9.

BOSTON MAY SEE SHOWER

Boston may see the shooting stars, which will be exceptionally brilliant and as thick almost, as the bright lights on shore houses. The heavenly display was originally foretold for late in May by a Japanese scientist, but authorities in Europe predicted that the display would appear June 9, or early June 10.

THIS PEBBLE FELL FROM SKIES

Few meteors reach earth because the speed with which they fall creates a tremendous friction, on reaching earth's atmosphere, which rapidly burns them up. This one, weighing three tons, landed, however. The picture shows a mother explaining the meteor to her children.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

CITY AND STATE WILL PAY TRIBUTE TO HERO DEAD TOMORROW

BUT FEW LEFT OF THE LINE OF BLUE

World War Veterans Will Bear Brunt of Memorial Day Exercises

The nation's heroes, both living and dead, will be paid grateful and reverential tribute tomorrow as city and state unite in annual Memorial Day exercises.

The tottering ranks of heroes whose valiant martial display as they marched down Tremont st with standards flying was a highlight of other Memorial Days will be missing this year. Only a handful remain and these not equal to the strain.

Despite their physical infirmities the spirit of '61 still burns within them and their faded uniforms will be seen in scores of cemeteries as they decorate the graves of their fallen comrades.

Time is making its impress too on the ranks of those other heroes who charged up San Juan Hill nearly 40 years later but they will be active participants in the exercises it will be to the World War heroes, however, that will fall the high privilege of shouldering responsibility of the success of the observance.

EXERCISES ON COMMON

In more than 175 communities in Greater Boston flowers will be strewn over the graves of more than 20,000 hero dead. The Elevated has arranged to run special cars and bus service to all cemeteries in anticipation of the great throng expected to visit them.

The day will open in Boston with memorial services at New Calvary Cemetery under the auspices of the American Legion and Spanish War Veterans. Mayor Curley is scheduled to attend.

The Kearsarge Association of Naval Veterans will conduct exercises on Boston Common at 11 a. m. Members of the association headed by the navy yard band and accompanied by a detachment of U. S. sailors and a detachment from the visiting French warship will march from Charlestown to the Common. Wreaths will be laid by Miss Agnes E. Barry, representing the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, and Mrs. Marth Bateman, representing the auxiliary to the Kearsarge Association. The principal address will be delivered by Mayor Curley.

TABLET ON BRIDGE

At 11 30 exercises will be held at Commonwealth Pier, which will also mark the initial sailing of the Conalieh motor liner Saturnia. The mayor will speak and the city fireboats will participate in this ceremony.

A tablet erected on Massachusetts ave bridge in memorial of Edward Everett Ginsburg will be unveiled at noon. There will be singing, and addresses will be made by Judge William H. McDonnell and Mayor Curley. The tablet has been erected by the Mass ave Business Men's Association. The principal address will be delivered by Mayor Curley.

A joint Memorial Day banquet by the members of M. J. O'Connor Post, U. S. W. V., and the Perkins Post, American Legion, will be held in Perkins Post Hall in South Boston at 2 p. m.

At the Old Granary Burying Ground on Tremont st., representatives of the St. Brendan Society will place a wreath on the grave of Gov. Sullivan immediately following the exercises of the Charitable Irish Society at which Hon. William J. Barry will deliver a memorial address.

FOLEY TO SPEAK

Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley will deliver the principal address at services conducted in Holy Cross Cemetery by Lawrence J. Flaherty Post of the American Legion. Hon. Caspar G. Bacon, president of the State Senate, is to speak at exercises of John T. Fallon Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Roslindale.

Parades are scheduled in Jamaica Plain, Newton and Cambridge, while in Lexington elaborate exercises are to be held in connection with the unveiling of a World War memorial tablet.

The sporting program includes the 24th annual field day of the Knights of St. Finbar at Russell Field, North Cambridge.

G. A. R. VETS TO AID

Only four members of S. C. Lawrence post, No. 66, G. A. R., are expected to participate in the exercises at Oak Grove cemetery, Medford. Of the 300 original members of the post only seven are alive. Gen. Edward L. Logan will be the principal speaker.

The Daughters of Union Veterans and allied organizations will hold exercises at Bell Rock park, Malden. Senator Angier L. Goodwin will be the principal speaker.

Eleven surviving members of U. S. Grant post, No. 4, G. A. R. of Melrose will join with Spanish-American and World War veterans in exercises at Wyoming cemetery, Melrose.

At Woodlawn cemetery, Everett, the five members of James A. Perkins post, G. A. R. will accept veterans of later wars in decorating the graves of 800 soldiers buried there.

Woburn Vets Aid Memorial Day Doings

George W. Flood, last active member of Woburn Post 161, G. A. R., of Woburn, kneeling at grave of his comrade, William C. Cook. As he knelt there his mind went back to the battle that he and Cook had talked over, even up to last November, when Cook died. Flood will take part in Woburn's Memorial Day events. Flood will observe his 83d birthday anniversary tomorrow.

AGED VET AT PAL'S GRAVE

In the quiet of Woburn Cemetery George W. Flood, last active member of Woburn Post 161 G. A. R. knelt today in the damp grass and breathed a prayer over the grave of his former comrade, William C. Cook.

The aged veteran, who will be 83 years old tomorrow, slipped away to visit Cook's grave before the Memorial Day crowds shall have come to pay their respects tomorrow.

"I wanted to just say a word to friend Cook," he explained. "He came from the same state that I enlisted from, Maine, and I miss him."

Cook answered the last roll call last November and his passing left Flood to represent the post, its commander, George Wyman, having been an invalid for the past several months.

When Flood enlisted in the last call for volunteers on March 18, 1865, he was assigned to the company of recruits in charge of Capt. Daniel Chesley. He was only 18 years old, and war was a great and glorious thing to him then.

He lives with his son, William J. Flood, at 230 Salem rd., Woburn, and enjoys fairly good health. He needs no assistance to get about the place where he takes delight in tending the flowers.

On the opposite side of the town lives William C. C. Colgate, last survivor of Burbank Post No. 33, G. A. R., who will be 88 years old next November.

Colgate, last of nearly 300 members of that post, proudly boasts that he has never missed a Memorial Day service for the past 50 years. He is planning to attend every event on the Woburn program tomorrow.

POLICEMAN DUE TO KNOW FATE TONIGHT

Prendergast Denies Charges; Tells Jury He Complained About Sheafe St. House

When the trial of Patrolman Patrick J. Prendergast of the Hanover st. station, charged with plotting to violate the national prohibition act, resumes today in federal court, defense and Government counsel will make their closing arguments.

Following the charge of Judge Lowell the case will be given to the jury, with the expectation of a verdict late this afternoon.

DENIES CHARGES

The government contends that the patrolman, who lives in Roslindale and is the father of three children, granted protection to Mrs Jennie Taddeo, of Sheafe st., North End, in return for $5 a week and the "privileges" of the house. The patrolman and Michael D'Agostino of Sheafe st. are co-defendants.

DIDN'T KNOW BRYOR GIRL

On the witness stand Prendergast declared he had never seen June Marie Butler, alias Helen Butler, alias Helen Bryor of New York until he saw her in the courtroom two days ago. She is the daughter of a New York police official who lived for a week in the house, and who it is alleged in testimony, the officer knew.

He denied ever receiving any money from Mrs Taddeo for protection or that he ever knew the co-defendant D'Agostino until recently in connection with this trial. In answer to the testimony of Rocco Raphael that the officer had told him to "keep his mouth shut about the patrolman, Prendergast stated he had only a casual acquaintance with Rocco and never told him any such thing.

He declared the only times he had visited the house was twice and for the express purpose of checking up on an application of D'Agostino to have his name placed on the voting list, and he talked with Mrs. Taddeo.

MADE COMPLAINTS

Evidence was introduced into the case for the first time, and by the patrolman, that, weeks before the place was raided, he had complained to his superior officers about the place. Under cross-examination he admitted he had not volunteered to aid in prosecuting those arrested at the time of the raid or volunteered to give what information he may have picked up concerning it.

The girl in the case, first known as Helen Bryor, gave the name yesterday of June Marie Butler and identified Patrolman Prendergast as the officer who visited her at the Sheafe st. house.

Bid Conventions Return to Boston

Every organization which has held a convention in Boston during the last ten years will be invited to come back to the Hub in 1931, under instructions issued by Mayor Curley to officials of the Commercial, Industrial and Publicity Bureau.

An effort will be made to combine as many of these conventions as possible with the industrial exposition at Columbus Park, South Boston, in July of next year.

Wetherbee Message of Cheer to G. A. R.

Wilfred A. Wetherbee, D. S. C., Newton adjutant-general of the National G. A. R. and assistant adjutant general of the Massachusetts Department, today issued the message

"One year ago Massachusetts the Grand Army membership was 1474. Today it is a little less than 1200. Though the thinning ranks are growing smaller and age is taking its toll of the members, their hearts are just as young and they are as keenly interested in the welfare of their comrades as they have ever been.

"Since last Memorial Day, 11 posts have surrendered their charters and the remaining ones have been sadly depleted through deaths of comrades.

"Yet their indomitable spirit carries on and Memorial Day will be observed as usual by the veterans of the Grand Army assisted by their allied organizations and the veterans of later wars.

Junior Model Yachts in Frog Pond Trial June 14

Preliminaries in the regatta of the Boston Junior Model Yacht Association, sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the Community Service of Boston, Inc., will be held on the morning of June 14, at Frog Pond, Boston Common.

The regatta itself will be held on Charles river, between Western ave and John W. Weeks Memorial Bridge on June 21. Weather permitting, boats will be sailed across the stream from the Boston to the Cambridge side. In the event of a blow the race will be down stream.

The preliminary trials on June 14 will include two classes, Sunday, 17 (on July 1) and those between 17 and 21 (on July 1, 1930).

Races will be for four wind model yachts: model yachts 18 inches and under, yachts between 18 and 24 inches, and yachts between 24 and 36 inches.

Measurements of all boats will be taken from bow to stern of the hull, not including the bowsprit. There will be no restrictions as to rig, sail area, displacement or control.

Rules governing the June 14 trials are: All boats must be made and sailed by the contestants; contestant is not limited to number of boats entered; three trials will be sailed in each race. Total number in three trials to qualify. Awards will be made for first, second and third places.

Membership in the Boston Junior Model Yacht Association is open to all boys not over 21 years of age. Boys desiring to enter the contests may register at the Boston Model Yacht Club on Wednesday afternoon, June 11, at the Frog Pond, or may send in their names by mail to Francis X. McLaughlin, director of Boys' activities at Community Service of Boston, Inc., 578 Boston st., or to Mr. Pierson, secretary of the Boston Model Yacht Club, who are directing both the preliminaries and the June 21 contest.

Entries for the contest may be sent to the Community Service at 578 Boston st., or to Mr. Pierson, secretary of the Boston Model Yacht Club, at 121 Coleridge st., East Boston.

'RADIO EYE' TO GUIDE FLIERS AT NIGHT

Television Gives Airmen View of Earth at All Hours

The eyes of the aviation world were today focused on what, until now, have proven the eyes of aviation in fog and darkness.

[illegible] safety device perfected by John Hays Hammond, jr., of his Gloucester laboratory where previously he invented apparatus for directing ships and torpedoes by radio.

His new invention, or application of television, to an airplane pilot's eye, no matter how thick the fog, or how dark the night without lights, when he is landing at his airport.

SCREEN IN COCKPIT

By means of the radio eye the pilot of an airplane is able to discern whatever is below him on a [illegible] screen placed ahead of him in the cockpit.

"This is one of the greatest factors yet developed for aviation," said Hammond to a Boston Evening American reporter. "The invention is the wedding of radio vision and aviation.

"There are three radio compass stations equipped with direction finders. These are located at three points alongside the airport. There is an automatic transmitter on the plane, which broadcasts a continuous signal on which the operators at the compass stations train their direction finders.

"We have given the pilot of an airplane a television eye that enables him to see everything beneath him, no matter how thick the weather.

TWO MILE RANGE

"We are not training for long distance television. A two-mile range around the airport is all we want, and we can clearly televise over this distance today," Hammond continued.

"This is just a starter of many other new developments. It will not be long before an airplane can televise a battle scene at sea covering a two-mile area and have the enemy ships flashed to a fleet of submarines beneath the surface.

"No longer must they come up for a periscope view only to be shot at by the enemy. The television eye in the plane 1000 feet up in the sky will photograph the surface scene for the underwater craft.

"What we are doing today in radio and television is just a beginning of what the next generation will do in more wondrous scientific magic," he concluded.

Holy Cross 5-1 Favorite to Beat B. C. Tomorrow

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., May 29—Lou Fink, who trained Gene Tunney for his two championship bouts with Jack Dempsey, talked with Mr. Boston as they watched Jack Sharkey train here for his 15-round bout with Max Schmeling on June 12.

Jack Conway

"Tunney was a man without fear when he battled Dempsey at Philadelphia and again at Chicago," said Fink. "He laughed at danger when he got into a dinky little plane at Stroudsburg and flew to Philadelphia. He never batted an eye when he was in an auto with some daffy driver trying to crack all speed records.

"When it comes time for me to go, I'll just go," Gene would remark when I would chide him on some of the risks he took.

"Since getting married to the former Polly Lauder, Tunney does not take so many chances. He told me he now has something to live for and that he is more careful.

"One reason why Tunney was so successful in the ring was because he was very thorough in his training. He did light exercise between bouts. When he hit a training camp he would go along easily until two weeks before the fight, when he would bear down."

Fink Talks About Famous Long Count

MR. BOSTON ASKED LOU about the famous long count in the second Dempsey-Tunney bout at Chicago.

"Dempsey was entirely at fault for the long count," asserted Fink. "Jack and Gene had agreed to a rule which required a boxer scoring a knockdown to retire to a neutral corner. It was further agreed that the referee would hold up his count if there was any violation of this rule.

"As we stood in the center of the ring before the bout, I can distinctly remember referee Dave Barry saying, 'Mr. Dempsey, if you score a knockdown you must retire to a neutral corner. Otherwise I shall hold up the count. The referee then gave similar instructions to Tunney.

"Gene got into trouble when he backed against the ropes. He couldn't get out of the way of Dempsey's left hook. Jack must have clipped Gene five or six times. When Tunney got back to his corner, I thought his brain would be in a muddle and was surprised when he told me he was all right.

"Tunney took the spirit out of Dempsey when he got up and soared two right-handers to the head as he went backwards. Dempsey admitted he was licked when he stopped dead in his tracks, motioned with his hands towards Tunney and said 'come on.'"

"Sharkey has the greatest left hand of any heavyweight in action today," said Lou. "He can hit a dime with his left, much like Tunney. Jack is a good trainer like Gene. He keeps himself in condition between bouts and so the training grind is not severe on him.

"Sharkey has reached the flatic heights without getting burned out and so should be good for five or six more years if he wishes to remain in the game."

Pat Frayne, San Francisco sports expert, called Mr. Boston on the telephone to say hello. Pat traveled 2000 miles to cover the fight for the Hearst newspapers in San Francisco. Pat's brother, Ed, is sporting editor of the New York American.

"Kid Chocolate," said Mr. Boston, "has become quite a Sharkey booster.

"The Kid is at Gus Wilson's camp and is picking Sharkey to win by a knockout inside of three rounds."

"Al Lacey was in charge of Fidel LaBarba's corner in his tussle with Bushy Graham at the Garden. Lacey was rushed into service following the sudden death of Mrs. George Blake, wife of LaBarba's manager. Al worked with LaBarba when the latter showed in the national championships in Boston in 1924 and in the Olympic games in the same year, also when Fidel clashed with Pilkey Clark and Kid Chocolate in New York.

JONES, VOIGT ADVANCE IN TITLE GOLF

don been staged in any championship anywhere. Jones, seemingly a sure winner when 4 up and five to play, almost had heart failure before he got the final putt home to beat the gallant, courageous Johnston on the last green.

No golfer ever before had staged such a comeback against a great Jones. Known as a competitor with the killer instinct, highly developed that is, he kept his man down once he had a lead was safe. Jones suddenly was attacked by a rival who would not take "no" for an answer.

Johnson Stages Great Comeback

Swinging into action, much a, he had done in other great finishes that labeled him one of the greatest competitors in America, Johnston quickly won the 14th and 15th to be only 2 down with 3 to play, and when it looked as though the match was definitely ended at the 16th Jimmy blandly holed a 12-foot putt for a half. This made Jones dormie but Johnston took the 17th away from him and sent the match right up to the final green.

Throughout the last five holes both Americans had been unable to play their shots because of the attention of an unruly gallery. The latter was particularly interested in Jone's striking and hardly gave him room to swing his clubs, in spite of frantic appeals from the officials.

That both were able to get good 4's at the 18th under the great pressure that was on them spoke volumes for their fortitude. However a half wasn't enough for Johnston here. It meant defeat. But it was a glorious defeat.

Jones, careful, monotonously accurate, simply got the jump on his rival American after turning for home, 1 up, and with victories at the 10th, 12th and 13th, became 4 up and practically won the match, then and there.

The cards of this great match follow:

Jones—
Out	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	5	—36
In	3	5	4	4	5	5	4	5	—38	—74
Johnston—
Out	4	5	4	4	4	4	4	4	—37
In	4	5	3	5	4	5	4	4	—38	—76

Jones' Break Is Most Dramatic

Jones sudden break, after his amazing sequence of pars and birdies, he was 1 under par to the 18th, was one of the most dramatic happenings ever recorded at old St. Andrews. He had driven the 512 yard 10th green to get a winning bird-3, while Johnston, having hit a spectator with his drive, was well over the green with his second.

Jones had halved the 11th in perfect 3's, almost holing his putt for a birdie. He had won the 12th with a par 4 by laying Johnston dead to rights, after both had pitched their seconds home. He had won the 13th with another par, the result of a drive, a pitch and 2 putts while Johnston, being trapped, off the tee was taking 3 to get home.

Then the denouement. They were almost overwhelmed by the crowd and Bobby's reaction was to half hit his chip shot, finally being well up to the green with 2 long woods. Johnston then chipped on, 6 feet from the cup, and sank the putt for a winning bird. This made him 3 down.

Francis Ouimet, American champion of another and better day, passed out of the British amateur golf championship in the fifth round this morning. The Bostonian lost to Lister Hartley, by 4 and 3.

Quimet's defeat was due to the fact that he couldn't hold Hartley's rapid pace on the incoming nine, the Briton playing the final six holes of the match in exact pars. He won the tenth, eleventh and thirteenth to become 4 up with 5 to play and the match thereupon was practically over.

The cards:

Ouimet, out	3	5	4	5	4	5	5	3	—36
Hartley, out	4	4	4	5	4	5	4	4	—36
Ouimet, in	5	4	4	3	5	4
Hartley, in	4	3	4	4	5	4

The Ouimet match showed no particular advantage in either direction until, starting at the ninth, Hartley reeled off victories at the ninth, tenth, eleventh and thirteenth, with a half at the twelfth. After that it was only a matter of routine.

Ouimet Putting Iron Failed to Work

Ouimet lost the tenth, in spite of a good mashie approach. He faced an 18-footer for a birdie instead, he took three putts and a losing buzzard. It was the same at the eleventh, where both got home from the tee, but the American took three putts from 45 feet and lost becoming 3 down.

Both had uneventful 4's at the twelfth but at the next Ouimet lost his drive in the whins and, after playing a provisional ball, he lost the first one and used a brassie to the short of the green. The third left him a long putt for a par 6, which he didn't get.

Hartley sent his second home and took putts gave him a victory. The latter had an easy putt to win the fourteenth, after Ouimet had sliced his second shot, but Hartley missed and got only a half. Their par 6's at the fifteenth then ended it.

Ex-Pugilist Dies on His Birthday

New York, May 29 (AP)—Anthony Sarubbi, once known as "Young Wagner," a leading featherweight boxer of years ago, died in his home in Greenwich Village a he was celebrating his 42d birthday today. He had been ill about a month.

"Young Wagner" in his prime fought Johnny Dundee, Kilbane, K. O. Brown, McGovern and Frankie Fums among others. He retired from the ring 13 years ago to enter business.

Six of his 10 surviving brothers are boxers, three of them amateurs.

Texas College Star Signs With A's

Austin, Tex., May 28 (AP)—Frank "Pinky" Higgins, captain of the University of Texas baseball team and reported one of the best college second basemen ever turned out in Texas, announced today that he would report to the Philadelphia Athletics within the next two weeks. Terms of his contract were not disclosed.

His college batting average this year was .378 and he fielded .966.

Diamond Pick-Ups

Harry "Socks" Seibold not only leads the National League pitchers in number of victories with seven but he also tops them all in hurling complete games. He has finished every contest which he has started, nine in number. Quite a mark for a flinger on a second-division club.

Hal Carlson, Cubs' mound ace who died suddenly yesterday, was one of the most popular players and best twirlers in the game and his death will be greatly mourned by all who knew him.

He was the National League champions' only winning hurler this season and his passing is bound to weaken the Windy City outfit considerably.

Carlson will always be remembered as the only player in the history of the game who was first an outstanding trick ball player and later a legitimate hurler of the first rank.

Years back when with the Pirates Hal used to thrill a capacity Forbes Field ball park crowd with his antics.

When the rule against these deliveries was passed, the Pirates failed to register him as one of those who could continue to monsten the ball, and he became useless and was sent back.

He could have used baseball, for plenty for that mistake. Instead, he went back to the business and began learning how to pitch all over again. He returned in a year or two as a better legitimate hurler than he ever was when employing the trick stuff.

Most of the big league managers are living up to Judge Landis' order against making public the names of starting pitchers a few minutes before game time.

The commissioner thinks that this new rule will make it tough for the gamblers. He is mistaken. The boys who are wont to wager on baseball know nearly all there is to know about the pastime and they can tell, nine times out of 10 who is going to pitch every big league game the night before it is going to be played.

RECORDS DUE TO FALL IN 4A MEET

By BILL CONNELL

Track and field records tremble tomorrow when some 750 athletes march into the Harvard Stadium for the annual I. C. 4-A. games.

Thirty-four colleges have entered teams from the institutions which are striving all the way from Maine to California.

Marks of the 100-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, broad jump, pole vault, shot put and javelin throw are the records that are in the greatest danger of being toppled as the Stadium afternoon.

Some of Southern California's record-holders, Charley Paddock, Lee Bartlett, Clarence Dehnert and Ivan Riley, are the class of the Far West, for each of the pair mentioned is on paper between 15 and 18 points better than any team in the meet.

Harvard is capable of gathering 21 points, Penn and Michigan should finish close behind Harvard, California is not figured to cut in on the totals of the front rank [illegible]

Seibold Hurls 7th Win as Braves Beat Phils, 5-1

BERGER HITS HIS 11TH HOMER

By JOE CASHMAN

Harry "Socks" Seibold annexed his seventh victory and Walter Berger hit his eleventh home run of the season as the Braves took the Phillies into camp, 5 to 1, in the thrice-postponed opening of their series at the Wigwam.

The Tribal mound ace just toyed with the slugging Phils all day long the cold and rainy afternoon. He allowed but six scattered hits, was invincible in the pinches and probably could have chalked up a shut out had he been in the mood.

Always [illegible] talking, he was more so than usual against the Phils. Twice he allowed the first two batters to face him in an inning to reach and laughed at them as he retired the next three men. He repeated by pitched three balls to a batter and then made him roll or pop out or fanned him.

His every move made it appear as though he wished to show his contempt for the enemy, the hardest-hitting aggregation in either league.

The Warriors made only eight hits off Phil Collins and Grover Cleveland Alexander, but they were able to come through with safeties with men on bases, nonetheless, and opposition could never do except in one frame.

Berger Hits His Eleventh Homer

Berger's homer, which came with nobody on in the sixth, traveled very high in the air and barely cleared the screen in front of the left-field stands. It was quite a sock, but didn't compare with the drive he made last Friday against Brooklyn.

Both teams played fine ball in the field. The natives didn't make an error, while the Phils' two misues were excusable. Tommy Thevenow, enemy shortstop, robbed several of the Tribe of hits, while Randy Moore pulled Rudolph out of a few tough holes by fine catches in center.

The Warriors took the lead in the very first frame when they scored one run and tossed away a great opportunity to make several more.

Richbourg walked and Maranville singled. Sisler's long carrier sent Richy to third, and Berger walked, filling the bases.

Moore hit a sacrifice to send Richbourg home and the bases were loaded again when Collins hit Spohrer in the arm and narrowly escaped being hit on the chin in return. It took several of the Braves and Phils to keep the local traveler from going out to the box to square accounts.

When peace had been restored Red Rollings ended the frame by forcing Spohrer.

Maguire Scores After Smart Playing

The natives added another run to their total in the second. Maguire singled, stole second and came in on Richbourg's sung e.

The first two Phils in both the third and fourth innings reached but Seibold saw to it that they did no advancing.

The third native marker was the result of Berger's home run.

The two Phils who came in up in the seventh when Thompson doubled and McGrath [illegible] nated.

Old Alex entered the fray in the eighth and the Braves quickly got the ninth back and another for good measure.

Richbourg made his second attempt to open the frame and the Reb hit reached on an error by Hurst. Sisler advanced both runners with a sacrifice and Randy Moore sent both in with a single, after Berger had fanned.

FOUR NEW PARTS OF GIANT'S MACHINE

He is anxious to win another this year, and among those whom he has added to his 1930 machine are the four players pictured above. Critz, Allen and Donohue have been obtained from the Reds, while Roettger came from the Cardinals. The Giants will open their series with the Braves at the Wigwam tomorrow with two games. The Tribe hopes to have a series edge on the New York team.

JACK CAGNON IS KNOCKED OUT

Chicago, May 29 (AP)—Otto Von Porat, long ridiculed as a fighting man without a real fighting heart, has bounded back as one of the outstanding candidates for he heavyweight boxing champion-rip.

The Norwegian completely belied his soft-hearted reputation at the Chicago Stadium last night by battering Jack Gagnon, knockout conqueror of Tuffy Griffith to the canvas after six slashing rounds.

The knockout victory was perhaps the most impressive turned in by Von Porat since his invasion of America. Aiming heavy right hand punches skillfully at his fast moving target, he was as resolute in his attack as he had been cautious in previous fights. Six times he put the lanky gob before the count. The most courageous Gagnon became in the face of the heavy attack, the more furious became the barrage of punches.

Outweighing his rival 17½ pounds, Von Porat sparred leisurely during the first round, found his range and opened his attack in the second. In that round, he floored Gagnon for counts of eight and nine with terrific punches to the head and body. He repeated the knockdown once in the third and three times in the sixth before he finally finished his opponent.

McCoy Meets Sherry on Mat Next Week

Bob McCoy of Cambridge, great New England wrestler ever developed by local wrestling clubs, will attempt to continue his march to the heavyweight championship if the world a week from tonight in the Arena when he meets rugged Jack Sherry, champion of Ohio in a finish match.

McCoy hopes that Sherry will be just one more step in the way toward a return meeting with Otto Sonnenberg. Early in the season he battered Sonnenberg to the verge of defeat.

Held up a few months on account of injuries and illness McCoy has come back with a splurge in the last six weeks. The popular McCoy is whipping himself into the best condition of his career for his bout with Sherry.

Sherry is one of the roughest and toughest of all the wrestlers. His battles with Joe Malcewicz and Otto Sonnenberg were among the best of the season, and a roughhouser bout is in prospect when he and McCoy square off.

Shamrock V. Wins Race From Scratch

Ryde, Isle of Wight, May 29 (AP)—The Shamrock V won her race today over a course of 46 nautical miles. Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's Cup finished the sail in 3 hours 18 minutes, 25 seconds. Cambria was second and White Heather third.

The race was under the same conditions as yesterday with the Shamrock V one of the scratch boats.

B. C.-H. C. Golf

Boston College and Holy Cross will meet in a golf match at the Belmont Springs Country Club this afternoon.

EVERETT HELD TO SINGLE HIT

Ridge Tech established itself comfortably in first place in the Suburban League race yesterday at Russell Field, North Cambridge, when its star hurler, Ted Gallagan, swept through the Eve ett batting list for 15 strikeouts and allowed only one hit, to win, 4 to 0.

The Ridge Tech batting, heavily behind him and Reddick behind the plate, played a fine game.

Anderson gathered in a sure five that were heading for hits and Coviello, the Everett center fielder, banked down four beauties.

Cambridge Latin Downs Newton, 4-1

Cambridge Latin went into a tie for second place in the Suburban League yesterday afternoon at Russell Field, North Cambridge by racking on a 4 to 1 defeat on Newton high.

The Cantabs made sure of victory in the first inning by scoring four runs. Capey and Sullivan opened up this stanza with angles advancing on errors and then scoring on Sheehan's beautiful single. Capey, Sullivan and Sheehan starred for the winners.

YALE OARSMEN WORK OUT

Gales Ferry, Ct., May 29 (INS)—Yale oarsmen today dug their sweeps into the water of the Thames for the first time this season, starting the long grind that will be climaxed with the varsity race against Harvard on June 20.

All but the men of the third varsity crew went on to the river this morning and indulged in a paddling workout.

The third crew will reach here Monday from the American Henley at Philadelphia on Saturday. The varsity lineup today was that which won the Blackwell Cup on the Housatonic early in May.

Cunningham Hurls Concord to 4-1 Win

Through the brilliant pitching of Gordon Cunningham, who allowed only one hit, the Concord high school nine defeated Needham high, 4 to 1, in a seven-inning game at Emerson Playground, Concord Center, yesterday afternoon.

Cunningham was in excellent form, and the only hit made off his delivery was a single in the fourth by Capt. Sparks with a moment later got caught in an attempt to steal second. Cunningham struck out five batters.

Atlantic National Wins First Game

Atlantic National Bank won its first game in five starts when it defeated Hornblower & Weeks, 6 to 3, at Russell field last night.

In other Bankers' and Brokers league game, Stone & Webster defeated Whitney & Elwell, 10 to 7. Both games were postponed from the night previous.

Bates and Colby Divide Twin Bill

Waterville, Me. May 29—Colby and Bates split even in a double header in the State championship series played on Seaverns field yesterday.

Bates took the opener, 17 to 8 and Colby retaliated by handing the Lewiston collegians a 12-2 pasting in the second tilt.

Both games were loosely played and characterized by heavy hitting and many errors.

SHARKEY STARTS HARD WORK FOR TITLE FRAY

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

Orangeburg, N. Y., May 29—"Full speed ahead!"

This is the order I received today from Johnny Buckley. He gave similar instructions to Al Lacy and Tony Palazola, my trainers.

With the Schmeling bout on June 12, Buckley intends to keep me going in high.

I was tickled when Buckley told me to open up full speed in my training. I have been doing light work for the past four weeks and am in sufficiently good condition to breeze through the most rugged kind of workouts. I'm in the mood where I want to "step on the gas and—whizz!

It is easier to give everything one has in training than to take things easy during the preliminary stages of the conditioning process. In my own case, I like to work 10 to 12 rounds a day at top speed.

Trainers Forced to Hold Sharkey Back

When the training period begins Buckley and my trainers always keep holding me back. They realize there would be danger of my going stale if I were to be permitted to do all the work I wished.

I find that three weeks of intensive training is all I require to fit me for an important bout after I have had two to three weeks of gym drill.

This is probably because I spend a great deal of my time in the open air when not getting ready for a boxing match. My idea of a vacation is to go hunting and fishing. This type of amusement keeps me in the open air.

Work in Mountains Develops Physique

If you have ever gone hunting in a rugged country like the White Mountains, you can well realize how one hardens the muscles of the legs and develops the entire body by tramping 10 to 15 miles through the woods during the day.

When I defeated Jack Johnson in my first important bout as a pro, I weighed 181 pounds. I was at 196 pounds the night I knocked out Tommy Loughran in New York.

My life in the open air did that building job. Constant work in the gym has also helped make me bigger and stronger.

Most of my development has been around the chest and shoulders. As a result, my hitting power has been increased.

I have not put on any extra weight around my waist or my legs. Consequently I have not sacrificed speed or endurance.

At 196 pounds I am solid flesh and bone. I try to get every pound of my weight behind my short punches. That is why I have been hurting my sparring rivals so much with my punches.

American Champ Now at 199 Pounds

I now weigh 199 pounds. This is only three pounds above the notch at which I plan to enter the ring for my tussle with Schmeling.

Training conditions here at Orangeburg have been ideal. Gus Wilson, who trained Carpentier and then Dempsey, has one of the finest training camps in the world. It was here that I trained for my bout with Loughran. Naturally I figure it is a winning spot.

The camp is situated 23 miles outside of New York, high on the Hudson. I do my road work each morning in the shadow of the mountains, while I work out each afternoon in Wilson's splendid gym.

You may be sure it will be a well conditioned Sharkey who will crash into action against the German version of Dempsey on June 12.

SCHMELING WEARS DOWN PARTNERS

Endicott, N. Y., May 28—The Schmeling-Arctic expedition bogged down again today in a welter of rain, mud and low visibility that drove all hands to cover in the steam heated pavilion at En-Joie Park, where Herr Max entertained 300 of the local Eskimos with a seven course boxing spread.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding the resistance of the elements the unemployment situation disgorged enough addicts to pack the pavilion. There is no hardier specimen than a boxing bozo. Even a few women and children sloshed in out of the storm.

Schmeling worked nine rounds altogether in anticipation of tomorrow's holiday. He boxed two rounds with Stanley Poreda, three with George Neron and two with Jack De Mave, who didn't fail today but merely took a low bow in the final round. Then Max Shaid-ler boxed and did body work for two more rounds.

While Schmeling's boxing today was not as sharp or incisive as it was yesterday he revealed his superb physical condition again by shuffling through the boxing without taking a long breath while his sparring partners seemed to be having trouble with their bellows.

Schmeling is not putting the old hop on his fast one yet but he keeps moving in fast and only Poreda was able to match agility with him.

Schmeling Wears Down Sparring Partners

Neron went an extra round at Schmeling's request and while he apparently was not punished much, he quit, wheezing and tired. At the end of five rounds Herr Max was just beginning to feel good, but he had to wrap up his punches when De Mave started to cate.

Jack did fairly well the first round, but became leg weary I second and couldn't avoid Schmeling's taps. Finally a flurry short, light punches did him in and he went under until his touched the floor.

Herr Jacobs took off tonic for Boston this morning and summon a fresh pack of mates to the rescue. He has no fixed opponent ahead and can land about three more if he promises to take the h. off his diminishing gate. Jacobs show the boys some real hittin

"Where are can line up our ; properly," said Joseph, "and send each man against Schmeling and he will able to cut loose. There's a sense in banging up one or two men and then quitting. I'm going to let Max leave his fight up here. He's working now on timing and precision."

INDRISANO TO FIGHT BRITON

Johnny Indrisano, popular East Boston welterweight, opens a campaign, which he is hopeful will carry him to a title go when he clashes with Harry Mason of England, holder of both British lightweight and welterweight crowns at Mechanics building, Monday night, June 9.

A blocker of brilliance, a straight, hard right-hand puncher and an aggressive type of boxer, the Noddle Island boy already has demonstrated his ability to take the measure of all local welterweights.

He has never failed to make good when pitted against the top-notchers. Joe Dundee when title-holder refused to meet Indrisano with the title at stake and he forced the local boy to come into the ring overweight. Indrisano won, but Dundee retained the crown.

Jack Fields, during his reign as champion, refused to meet Indrisano at any terms. Thompson already has turned down offers to box on the East Boston boy.

Mason, who made his first start as a welterweight in this country last night, plans an early arrival in the Hub, and will do all his training here.

Eddie Mack is planning to support the international bout with one of the best preliminary cards of the season.

No Restrictions on Women Athletes

Berlin, May 29 (INS)—The International Olympic Congress, meeting here today, rejected a motion to restrict the participation of women athletes in the 1932 Olympiad sports only.

The motion, introduced by Belgium, would have permitted feminine participation only in swimming, tennis and skating. Rejection of the proposal leaves women's Olympic status unchanged.

In spite of American opposition the number of participants of each nation in individual events was reduced from four to three. The duration of the games was fixed at 16 days.

N. Y. Garden Closes Boxing Season

New York, May 29 (AP)—Madison Square Garden has closed its indoor boxing season for another year with as fine a picture as ever seen in many a moon.

Fidel LaBarba, retired undefeated flyweight champion, last night chased speedy Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., for five rounds, finally caught with him and administered enough punishment to win the decision in ten rounds of slow mauling.

Joe Dundee, ex-welterweight champion, stole the show with a clever, fast performance in the ten-round semi-final. On the verge of a knockout in the first round, Dundee rallied in gallant style to gain the decision over Harry Mason, former English lightweight champion, Dundee weighed 137; Mason 136.

5 Riders in 30 Mile Pace Race

Nat Butler completed the field for the 30-mile motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle Track Saturday night when he added Anthony Zucchetti's name to his list of entries. Zucchetti will be the fifth man. Others are Frankie Neary, Al Lesmerises, Freddie Spencer and Larry Gaffney. It is one of the classiest fields ever assembled for an early season race and the 30 mile record is in danger of toppling.

The amateur motor pace followers have made a big hit and Nat Butler plans to make them a weekly feature. This week three of them, Anthony Bernard, Al Keith and Bruno Laura, will race 10 miles. There will also be the usual shorter distance races for amateurs and pros.

Winchester Will Protest Defeat

Watertown strengthened its hold on first place in the Mystic Valley league race by beating Winchester 7 to 2, yesterday at Winchester.

Winchester will protest the game, first claiming that Pelkey in rounding third base went out of his way to knock over Propocio, playing near the sack.

Both fell and were ruled out of the game by the umpire.

Later, under cover of the mist and rain, Pelkey went back into the lineup and when noticed, was again banished.

Runyon Sees Quick K. O. in Sharkey-Schmeling Bout

SAYS FIGHT WON'T GO 8 ROUNDS

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, May 29—In my opinion the fight between Sharkey and Schmeling will end by a knockout inside of eight rounds.

It will be only the second time in seven years that the heavyweight championship of the world has been decided by knockout.

Damon Runyon

In 1923 Jack Dempsey flattened old Senor Loney Angel Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas, in two heetic heats at the Polo Grounds.

In 1927 Mr James J. Tunney then Gene, slashed Tom Heeney, the Pulverized Rock of Down Under, to a ruddy smear in eleven rounds. This appears in Mr Tunney's record as a "technical" knockout. I hold with Mr. William Muldoon, the oldest Roman of them all, that there is no such thing as a "technical" knockout. A knockout is a knockout, whether a man is stretched out on the canvas as stiff as a poker, or whether he resigns sitting upright on his stool.

In either case he is most assuredly knocked "out of time," as the old Marquis of Queensberry would have said, and there is nothing "technical" about it.

The only situation that the much abused phrase might possibly cover is when a man is badly cut or breaks an arm, or suffers some accident that makes it necessary for the referee to stop the bout.

And even in such case I believe it all wrong to give a gladiator the demerit of a "technical" knockout as is the practice nowadays, especially in the record books. The record should state just what happened.

Fight Unlikely to Last Until 10th

I am inclined to think that Sharkey, fiered by his new found appause from the proletariat, will go on Schmeling with both fists in the early rounds, trying to make it quick and decisive.

The Lith has become very eager to win that title. I expect to see him firing with all his guns from the opening gong, until he either knocks Schmeling over, or gets a smack on the chin that will cause him to pause and reflect, in which case Sharkey is very good, indeed.

I cannot see the fight going into the 10th round. Or even into the ninth. These fellows are too anxious to get it over.

It will be, in my opinion, mainly a battle of a left hook against a right hand. Sharkey will probably be trying to dig his left into Max's supposedly weak spot, the stomach, while the Black Uhlan will be trying to land his right on Sharkey's chin, which would seem to be Sharkey's most fragile point.

Quentin Romero-Rojas and Jack Dempsey hit there, and knocked him out, and once upon a time a man named Riverbeni, or some such, had him on the floor for nine over in Jersey by connecting with his chin.

I give Sharkey a real good chance of knocking out Schmeling. But I give Schmeling just as good a chance of knocking out Sharkey. But I do not give either a chance of going the limit of 15 rounds.

Eagle Freshman Play Wildcats

Coach Frank McCrehan will take his Boston College freshman baseball team to Durham, N. H., this afternoon for a game with the freshman nine representing the University of New Hampshire.

Buddy Roy will be on the mound for Boston College. Buddy dropped his first game this season to the Holy Cross freshmen on Saturday last and is anxious to get back in the winning column.

The Eaglets will meet St. Anselm's at Manchester on Monday and will close the season against Wentworth Institute on the Wentworth class day later on in the week.

Peabody Defeats Beverly, 7 to 6

Peabody, May 29—Peabody high defeated Beverly high yesterday by the score of 7 to 6 in a game that was "nip and tuck" all the way. Beverly was leading, 2 to 1, up to the fourth inning when hits gave Peabody a 5 to 2 lead.

Peabody made their lead more secure in the ninth with two more runs, making the score 7 to 3. Beverly came into its half of the final inning and scored three runs.

They threatened to tie Peabody, but Smith, who was sent in to relieve Segeloff for Peabody in the last moments of the game, saved the contest from Beverly.

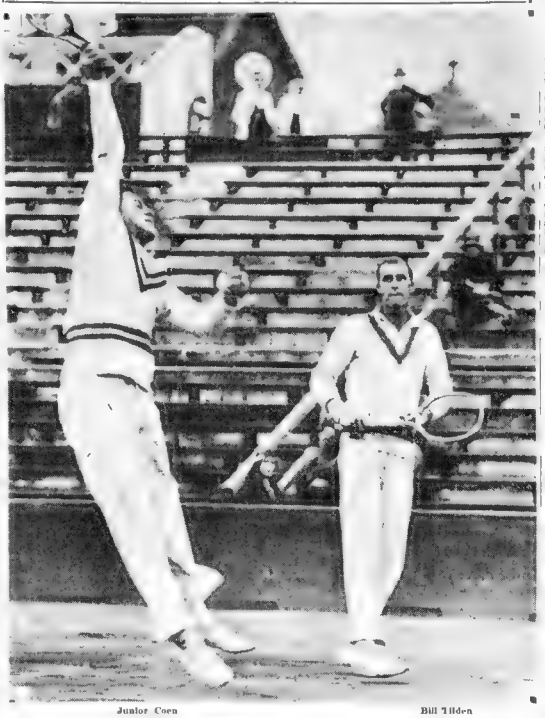
COEN GETS HIGH ONE IN PARIS TILT



Junior Coen Bill Tilden

WILBUR COEN IS DEFEATED

Autuil, France, May 29 (AP)—Wilbur Coen, eighth ranking American tennis player, was eliminated in the fourth round of the French hard court championships today by Baron Humbert de Morpurgo, Italian veteran, in straight sets. The scores were 6-3, 8-6, 6-1.

The Kansas City youngster's defeat left Bill Tilden as the only American standard-bearer in the men's singles. Morpurgo earned him into the quarter-finals round.

Bill Tilden defeated G. P. Hughes, England's third ranking player, to enter the quarter-finals. The scores were 6-1, 8-10, 7-5, 6-3. The American champion losing a set for the first time in the tournament.

TUFTS LOSES TO WILDCATS, 4-3

Durham, N. H., May 29. The University of New Hampshire baseball team defeated Tufts here today, 4 to 3, when Dawson scored in the eighth on Small's hit to break a 3 to 3 deadlock.

Jablonowski of New Hampshire and Adams of Tufts were hit in each team allowing but seven hits each.

New Hampshire opened the scoring in the third frame with a brace of runs. Chase flied out Jablonowski to Cleland and went to second on Hanna's pop over the infield. Small grounded out, advancing Jablonowski and Hanna.

Horgan drew a walk, loading the bases and Hayden knocked out a long single, scoring Jablonowski and Horgan. Tufts went out ahead in the fourth scoring three runs on Verge and Hubel opened with a single to Mehl and Adams

Sande to Ride at Clyde Park Meet

Greater Boston horse race fans are assured of seeing one of the best riders of all time at the Clyde Park meet of the Eastern Horse Club, for Earl Sande will ride on the second day of the meeting, June 14.

Sande, veteran jockey, and rider of Gallant Fox when that horse won the Preakness, and later the Kentucky Derby, will ride in either the first or second race. He probably will mount one of the string of John Macomber, Bayard Tuckerman or Augustus Goodwin.

Caligula Wins Reiset Stakes

Paris, May 29 (AP)—Caligula, three-year-old colt owned by Marcel Boz, became a leading candidate for the Grand Prix today by winning the Reiset Stakes over the Grand Prix distance of a mile and three quarters.

Caligula, by Town Guard-Satherine Swynford, showed good staying power and won easily by six lengths.

Raquel Threatens Father With Johnson's Money After Marriage

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Royes, a fiery beauty in revolt against her drab home in Hermosa, on the Mexican border, learns from her mother that Bill Johnson, the richest man in town, is building a house in which to install as his bride a lady known as Lily, Raquel, confident of her charms, flirts with Bill and wins a proposal of marriage. She does not love him, but she wants to free herself from the dominance of her dissolute father, Pancho. Then she decides she can't go through with it and flees on a train headed for Phoenix, Arizona. Her thoughts turn back to the ones with which she captured Bill Johnson's heart.

CHAPTER 3

Raquel moved restlessly. She peered out of the window. The train on which she was riding had stopped.

Dim figures moved through the yellowish dust fog, pierced by an oil lantern swung above a doorway. She could not make out the names above the door. Not that it mattered. Except to give her assurance that another stretch of miles had been placed between her and Hermosa.

"I wish we'd keep going," she thought. As if in answer to her wish, the train groaned, staggered under way. She indulged a covert smile of satisfaction that the two seats behind her were empty. She would have been conscious of prying eyes. No one had come into the car at this way station. She was free to think, to plan.

Quiet Anna
Raquel Would Do It

"Let's see, where was I? . . ."

Back in Hermosa on the desert with Bill Johnson. He had put Lily out of his life. It was she, Raquel, he must have.

She did not give Johnson his answer at once, she remembered. She was enjoying too much the power she held over him. She must keep his want for her keen him on the hot griddle of uncertainty. Thus she would become the more desirable in his eyes. She would be able to drive a better bargain, once she appeared to surrender.

Then too, she wanted to see Anna Schlemmer. Dunce of an Anna! All Hermosa knew Anna with her pretty face and calf eyes would squeeze out her heart's blood for Bill Johnson. She must muzzle Anna. Shut up her silly mouth.

For ever so long she sat before the broken mirror in the Ross shack that evening after John son had confessed his need of her. She had out-distanced Johnson on the trail, left him spurring after her horse's heels.

"I'm going to be Mrs. Bill Johnson," she kept telling the girl in the mirror. "Richest woman in Hermosa. Red silk dress. No, red velvet with a silk back. Rubies for my ears. Bracelets. A ruby ring, shape of a heart. Bill Johnson's heart."

Her lips twisted wryly. What mockery!

She tossed her head. A hard glitter of defiance shone behind the black of her eyes. After all Johnson was not so bad. Just rough. Raw. Unpleasant to touch. She would find ways to keep him at a proper distance—most of the time. Money. Johnson had money. Plenty of it. Pancho, her father, made certain of this.

All she had needed to do was to ask Pancho how much Johnson was really worth. That question was enough to make her father's cupidity. To make him suspect, even hope, some daughty was afoot.

The very next day her father had brought her the information fifty thousand dollars! Pancho, guzzling thick black coffee, smacked his lips over the sum, wiped his ragged bristling mustache with the back of his hand. She turned away from the knowing look he gave her. He must not see the answering flare in her eyes

Fifty thousand dollars! She had not thought the sum would be so overwhelming

Now, studying herself in the broken mirror, she gloated. Hateful old Hermosa. Miserable dust ridden den of a place. Miserable dust-crusted Hermosans. Dried up. Toads and scorpions. And the Rosses, most miserable of the lot.

"Maybe I can make Johnson take me to live in Phoenix," she told the girl in the mirror. "Anyhow, he's got to take me on trips to San Antone, and Chicago, maybe to New York Then on a ship to Havana and, and—Paris!"

The thought of Paris quite exhausted Raquel's imagination She returned to reality with a start. Pancho was roaring at her to come help him with his boots. They, had, he vowed profanely, grown in his feet.

She found her mother over by the stove in the shadows, rubbing a bruised arm. Emilio was pulling with all his boyish strength at Pancho's boots while Rosita, great blobs of tears on her pudgy cheeks, helped him lose, by the door, shook as with an ague

Raquel brushed aside the children, took her father's hand in the roaring Pancho. Her hands were on her hips, her arms akimbo, her eyes two points of red flames in the white of her face

Tells Father
She Is to Wed Johnson

"Take the boots off yourself, toro furioso," she said coolly to Pancho. "And from now on, keep your hands off these kids. I'm going to marry Bill Johnson! If you don't let up now, and if you ever get into any trouble, I'll take care that his money helps to give you what's coming to you!"

She saw her father's mouth drop open. As if he had been struck heavily, between the shoulders She wheeled and waded out of the open door. She was going to stamp on another fool, Anna Schlemmer

As Raquel turned in between two crumbling adobe posts, mere makeshifts for a gateway to Mrs Schlemmer's boarding house, she saw that Anna was sweeping away the alkali dust from the sunbaked patch of hard earth outside the entrance

"You, Anna!"

Raquel's voice, purposeful and low, bridged the distance between them. The drab slavey relaxed her hold on the broom. It toppled into the powdery dust of the yard. Instinctively, she drew back from the quiet fury that advanced toward her

Only Fools
Live in Hermosa

"You've been blabbing stories about me and Bill Johnson" Anna cringed against the wall of the house

"I just told I'd seen you—" she whimpered

"You just told your Ma, ya-a-h. And she told Lily. And now all hob's broke loose. Boons that you are, Anna!"

"Hombre, Raquel, I didn't mean——"

"I know. You didn't mean for me to find out what a sneak you are. You thought you'd stick Lily on me, so you could get Johnson's attention. I should be wearing each other to pieces. Well, it won't work. You on me, Anna. Sos Johnson. He wouldn't wipe his feet on you, hear? And from now on you keep your tongue in your mouth, forget Johnson. Forget me. If I ever find you've talked about either of us again——"

Anna's sobs were no longer smothered. They rose, a tide of hysteria agony and fear. Raquel reached out, jerked the cowering Anna to her feet.

"There, there," she said, not unkindly, "go back to your broom. It's what you were made for."

Not Anna's fault, Raquel thought, picking her way out through the gate, that the girl was a fool. One of a pack of fools. Rabbits. She had set her heel on one of them Wild horses couldn't drag her name from Anna's lips again

There remained only—Lily The painted one was no fool How was she, Raquel, going to silence Johnson's Lily?

Etiquette of Showers

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN

Is it proper for a mother to give her daughter a farewell shower as she is leaving town to be married?

MRS. L. F. Z.

Rules there aren't any rules of etiquette about showers, but one has to examine every one and determine if it is in good taste and good form as considered from the general point of view of etiquette. This is what we must do in this case. And examining it in this way I should say that such a party might easily be misinterpreted as a "begging party." And I'm sure you have thought of it in this way too, and hence your worried and wondering question about it. In this light

If the mother wishes to get together the friends of her daughter, for the good wishes that speed her on her significant and important journey, this can be done by giving a tea or reception or luncheon, a party that will be purely social and not have the "business-like" quality of shower

Pastel Nets for Youthful Summertime

By ANN ARDEN

(Ann Arden broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

IN THE far west the Hollywood style is no more. Gay young things dancing nights at the Ritmore in Los Angeles look for all the world like a reproduction of the civil war or later, in their long, picturesque frocks

THE MODE is getting giddier every minute. One really gets quite breathless watching the mass formation from seventy to almost zebec frequently. Not, we hasten to add, that it is not delightful. I really is after the limited possibilities of last year's tailoring. And you do feel flattered'

FOR THE "Proms," and other college festivities looming large on the horizon just now, fairly ion wide-skirted frocks, of such materials as dotted swi and organdy, flowered chiffons, flat crepes in past colors and printed taffetas, and the newly revise cotton nets are youthful and charming

WHETHER THE Empire silhouette would actual gain followers is a question that was recently an swered by the appearance of an Empire frock that might have been worn by Josephine herself Of chiffon taffeta, it was long and fitted a line, wil a slight flare at the hemline The very high waist line was marked by a band of pleated net with bow and streamers in the back

WHETHER YOU are "frilly" feminine or perfe the classic simplicity of tailored things, you can n overlook the increasing importance of ribbons. Rib bon trims hats, frocks, lingerie with equal effective ness. A ribbon bow and ribbon streamers frequent ly trim the new spring bonnet A ribbon sash or ribbon bow adds an ingenuous and ingenious touch to the demure frock

* * *

ANOTHER STYLE that recall the mid-Victorian era is the very new use of ruching for trimming. Another frock worn by the bonnet that repeated the swalling effect of the pomps and to define a simulated peplum

Have a Talk With Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am in the graduating class I are years I have been going with a g on school and out We have been the closest of friends, confide in each other the things nearest our hearts. Every year the graduating class holds a picnic in the woods.

This year my friend has been asked by the same fellow to all the school affairs at one time or another, and now she has invited her to accompany her on this trip My girl friend and I talked this over quite a while ago She thinks I am trying to break up their friendship

The fact he has not all sorts of mean things about me, indeed I have cried many a time He even tried to make her discontinue our friendship

Now do you really think I should continue to pal around with her? Or do you think that if she goes with him after saying those things to me that I am in fact telling her to report these things to me) that she could remain good friends with both of us

DEAR L. S

Why not have a talk with your friend? Perhaps you could arrive at some understanding. Of course, no woman ever lets her friendship for another woman ever come between her and her sweetheart. Your friend will have to choose between you

Parks of a Great City Make for Health

Beautiful and useful are the parks of a great city To thousands of persons they give the benefit of the out-of-doors, a place to play and a place to rest

Those who have the benefits and love of the country in the realm of the multitudes there are who cannot get out of the city. The thousands who live in the tenements of the city find in the parks contact with sun and better health

Every human being and animal must have fresh air and sunshine in order to live

But for several days of summer at times when the very thought of getting out-of-doors gives new life and impetus to one's day in the park The more one has of these blessings the longer will he live

Get out into the parks as often as you can, in the direct sunlight The cool breezes stimulate and refresh your body and nerves exercise you can get is so much to the good for your health.

Every person needs new inspiration and you can get plenty of it in parks on the sunny days. Did you ever get up in the early morning for a picnic breakfast in a beautiful park and dale, past seashore and countryside, seeing the beauties made by God and man as you go. Beautiful gardens, the deep-cool woods a tumbling stream, or a distant lake, all make up a beautiful kaleidoscopic picture in your mind's eye as you return to rest

Talking about beautiful gardens, it is a beautiful and gracious custom in many places to have the gardens of large estates opened to the public on certain days of the week. More people should take advantage of these happy spots. There is a mental stimulus and satisfaction of the spirit which we derive only from the beauties in nature.

THE WEEKLY STORY FOR BOYS and GIRLS

Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy

Five Witches Who Weren't Witches at All

By UNCLE TODDY

Copyright, 1928, by Paul Wing

Lorraine and David and Tom and Tillie Toddy and Alfred, the rabbit, all had a fine night's rest at Mr. Toddy's. And, after a good hearty breakfast (in the morning (they all had Toddy Lidges for breakfast, of course)

Well, after a good hearty breakfast they all felt ready to start on toward Tod ley Town

So they all started.

They thanked Mr. Toddy for his kindness and he told them they were welcome and he hoped he would see them again soon.

He didn't just say, "You're welcome," as if it was the usual thing to say when someone said, "Thank you."

He said it as if he were glad of it.

He said, "You are welcome" as if he were glad he'd been paid. As if he were glad for me as it has for you.

Come to see me again soon, won't you?

And Lorraine and Tillie and David and Tom and Alfred, they would. And they meant it.

But, Mr. Toddy, we don't know where to come. Because your restaurant never seems to be in the same place twice. Where shall we find you?"

"Oh!" said Mr. Toddy, "Don't you worry about that! Because, wherever you find me, I'll be there first —waiting for you.

So they all smiled and said goodbye and started on.

And after they left the tree where Mr. Toddy's restaurant was, there wasn't another tree in sight Ahead of them, as far as their eyes could see, was nothing but sand. Just sand in every direction. More sand than they had ever seen in their lives before.

"I guess," said David, "This is the desert. Who, Mr. Owl, said we would have to cross."

"Yep, that's what it is," Tom Toddy replied.

"I wish," said Alfred, the rabbit, "that my mother and father had been camels instead of hares."

"You mean——" Tom Toddy started to speak but Lorraine interrupted him. She said:

"Oh, please, let's not argue about whether he's a hare or a rabbit. And anyway," she went on, "I want to know why he wishes his mother and father had been camels."

"Why," said Alfred, "if they had been camels I could go without a drink of water for nine days."

"And," said Alfred, "just seeing all this dry sand has made me thirsty already!"

"Well," said Tillie Toddy, "if you want to ride us on your back, Tom and I will say the magic words again and make you your regular size. And then you'll be at least twenty times as big as you are now.

"Oh, no!" cried Alfred, "because if I was twenty times as big as I am now, I'd be twenty times as thirsty, too."

The others all laughed heartily at that as they walked along across the sand

They walked and walked and walked. But they didn't seem to be any nearer to any place than they had been when they started walking. David looked back over his shoulder to see how far they had come Then he stopped

"Why, look!" he cried, "you can't see one Mr. Toddy's tree anymore. We walked so far!"

"Isn't that funny!" Lorraine exclaimed, "I don't feel as if we had been walking so long"

"Neither do I!" said Tillie.

"That just goes to show you mustn't judge by your feelings," said Tom Toddy.

"That isn't what you said before," said Lorraine.

"What isn't?" Tom asked.

"Once before you said something like that; but you didn't say we mustn't judge by our feelings, Lorraine replied.

"Oh," cried David, "I remember! The other time he said, 'You mustn't judge by appearances.'"

"That's right," agreed Lorraine, "That's exactly what you said."

"Of course it's right!" said Tom, "You mustn't judge by appearances or by your feelings either, because they are both usually wrong. And that's right, too."

"Oh!" said Lorraine meekly.

And David said, "Oh!"

"Anyway," said Alfred, in a whiny voice, "it doesn't put any sugar in the Fidges and I'm thirsty."

"Come along then," said Tom Toddy, "let's not waste time standing here in the middle of the desert."

"Oh, dry up!" Tom cried.

"That's just the trouble," said Alfred, "I am dried up. I'm thirsty! And the sand is hot on my feet, too."

"Oh!" cried Lorraine, "that's too bad. Let me carry you. Then may be you won't be so thirsty and cry baby but and won't hurt your feet." And she picked Alfred up in her arms and carried him

"When he gets too heavy for you we'll take turns carrying him," said Tillie.

"Thank you," said Alfred, "this is much better. But I'm still thirsty"

"Well," said Tom, "You'll just have to wait."

So Alfred had to wait. And they walked on.

The sun got higher and higher in the sky. And the higher it got the hotter it got. And the hotter the sand got, too.

They all began to get very tired and very dusty and very thirsty even Tom and Tillie, who usually didn't seem to mind anything.

"I'm thirsty," said Alfred.

"So am I," said David, "And I'm hungry, too."

"So am I," said Lorraine and Tillie.

"I am, too," said Tom, "but there's nothing to eat here — so there's nothing we can do about it. Here, Lorraine, let me carry Alfred a while"

So Tom took Alfred from Lorraine and they started on.

Suddenly Tillie stopped.

"What's that?" she said, pointing off across the sand.

"What?" asked Lorraine.

"Those funny looking things that are coming toward us," said Tillie, "five of them, see?"

"Why, I don't know!" said Lorraine, "I never saw anything like them before. What do you think they are, Tom."

"I don't know either," said Tom.

"They look like witches," said David, "With those pieces of cloth around them, flying in the wind."

"They do look like witches, don't they!" cried Lorraine.

"I'm thirsty," whimpered Alfred.

"Oh, don't bother us about that now!" said Tom, "because those things are coming fast — they're almost here"

"I'm scared!" cried Lorraine.

And just then the five queer looking things stopped before them.

"Who are you?" Tom asked.

"Are you witches?" asked Tillie.

"Yes," said one of the five things, "we are sandwiches! Mr. Toddy sent us for you to eat. And inside each of these napkins that are wrapped around us you will find a bottle of Toddy and milk so you won't be either hungry or thirsty any more Help yourselves!"

With exclamations of delight they all ate their sandwiches, which were very good, and drank their milk and Toddy. And nobody was either hungry or thirsty any more.

And I think it was very kind of Mr. Toddy to send the delicious sandwiches out into the desert for them.

As they started on David said, "Here Alfred, it's my turn to carry you now."

"Oh, you needn't mind," said Alfred, "because I feel so good now that the hot sand doesn't even bother me. But thank you just the same."

"Just the same as what?" said David.

"Why," said Alfred, "just the same as though the hot sand did bother my feet."

So they set off there, across the desert," said Lorraine. "Don't you see some black specks."

"Yes, I do," said David, "What do you suppose they are?"

"You don't suppose they are more sand witches do you?" asked Tillie.

"It's possibly nothing but a mirage," said Tom.

"What's a mirage?" Lorraine asked.

"A mirage," said Tom, "is something that isn't what you think it is —only you thing it is."

"Then I don't think those specks are a mirage," Lorraine replied, "because they are getting bigger There are five of them. And they are coming this way, too."

"Yes," said Tillie, "and they aren't sand witches, either. Because each one of them has four legs They are animals. And they are awfully big animals"

"My goodness," cried Lorraine, "I hope they won't hurt us."

"Don't get excited," said Tom, "because when they get close to you things aren't usually as bad as they look at a distance. Wait until they get here and we'll find out what they are."

So that is what they did. And that is what you and I will have to do, too: we will have to wait until next week to find out what the five animals were.

Now—if you would like to have a beautiful story book about the adventures of Tom and Tillie and Lorraine and David, write and send it to you. I think you'll like this Toddy Story Book because it shows you pictures, in color, of the four children and their funny friends. Just write a postcard or letter to Uncle Toddy, 250 Park Avenue, New York City, and say, "Send me the Toddy Story Book." Be sure to sign your name and address plainly. You'll send you the story book right away.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION TO MOTHERS

Every day during the summer play days, call the children in late in the afternoon and give them a glass of Toddy made with milk. You'll find it just what they need to replace the energy used up in play by their active little bodies.

For Toddy, you know, is the delicious malt, chocolate food-drink made of be lithful barley malt extract, nutritious cocoa, pure fresh milk (freed from butter fat) and pure cane sugar. Of course you recognize that all these ingredients are universally recommended by health authorities as builders of strength and vigor and as an ideal food to digest.

Toddy is so delicious, too. Both children and grown-ups love it. It encourages the youngsters to drink all the milk they need. Even children who dislike milk will take all you'll let them have when it is served with two or three teaspoons of Toddy.

You can get Toddy at most good grocery stores and delicatessens.

New York Stocks — News of Street

STOCK PRICES WORK SLOWLY UPWARD

New York, May 29.—Stock prices continued to move slowly upward during the forenoon session of today's market. Trading was on a moderate scale, with the professional operators, seeming to be the principal participants.

Business appeared to feel that the weight of the evidence favored substantial business recovery within a few months.

RAILS ARE SOLD

Industrial stocks and rails moved in opposite directions in a dull and almost featureless market. Selling of the rails was based mostly on the unexpectedly poor April gross and net income statements. Specialties in the motor group, both those paying dividends and those not paying dividends, continued to be in demand. Purchasing power continued to be in the market. Interest in the rails appeared to be confined to the purchase of issues which were thought to be in a position to benefit from the recovery in business which is expected to set in during the next few months.

Steel shares continued to be under pressure. Bethlehem Steel, which sold up to 48 1/2 on the opening transaction, dropped to 47 1/2 before the end of the first hour. United States Steel was off 1/2 at 262 1/2.

Sales amounted to 1,000,000 shares in the first hour.

GOOD MONTH SEEN

Such results of importance as have been announced for May to date have been reflected in the market. Most of the reports received have been regarded as highly favorable, and the belief is growing that one of the best months in the history of the stock market may be in the making.

On the basis of information now at hand it is indicated that April gross for 200 railroads will approximate 12 per cent below April 1929 as compared to a drop of 15 per cent in March.

Trading was restricted, of course, by the fact that the market closed for the first part of the week, and many traders in anticipation of a holiday had covered. Other issues gaining 2 points or more included American Tobacco B, Mack, Sloss-Sheffield, Safeway Stores, Maxwell Tea and A. M. Byers.

DULL TRADING; MINOR CHANGES IN BOSTON

Trading was dull on the Boston Stock Exchange today, with minor changes scattered throughout the list. American Telephone was up ¼, Cities Service ¾, Bigelow Sanford ½ and Edison ¾ higher.

Margaritahet Calotype dropped into new ground for this year at 100, off 2. The company recently omitted the stated dividend, declaring only the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share.

First National Stores added over 2 points. Boston & Albany, selling ex-dividend, gained ¼. Anaconda and Hudson Coal & Coke each added a fraction. Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway preferred dipped a point. Financial, Chief among Credit Alliance and Hathaway B each had fractional losses.

Quincy Mining Co. has cut the lode on the 91st level No. 2 shaft and there is a good showing of copper. On the 86th level, North No. 8 shaft, almost up to No. 8 shaft, miners have been working for the past 16 days to loosen a deposit of mass copper.

Gen. Samuel McIlvaeris, chairman of the board of Phenix National Bank; John W. Cutler and Albert L. Smith of E. H. Rollins & Sons; Philip Gallinger, Seattle, Wash.; Sewal Cutler, Boston; William W. Gibson, Albany, and M. E. Pennington, Birmingham, Ala., have been elected directors of McKenzon & Robbins, Inc. Maynard S. Bird of Bond & Goodwin, Edward M. Bradley of New Haven, Charles F. Cutler of Winn, Gordon & Company of Albany and James W. Morrison of Chicago have retired as directors.

Sales of Consos Dry Ginger Ale Co., Inc., thus far in the first quarter of the fiscal year lend additional assurance to the maintenance of the present $5 dividend and the likelihood of profits for the current quarter exceeding those of the same 1929 quarter.

Listed Bond Mart Movements Narrow

New York, May 29—Suffering from the pre-holiday apathy of traders, the listed bond market dozed today. Its lassitude held prices close to yesterday's close, with a slight tendency to sag evidenced. Only a few bonds which were among those showing moderately good to fair progress upward in the dull market. Volume of sales was reduced appreciably today.

Republic Steel's Dividends Ordered

The Republic Steel Corporation declared initial dividends on both preferred and common stocks, passing the first on the annual basis in addition to the quarterly dividend of $1 a share on common, the corporation declared a dividend of ½ cents a share for the period 1 April 30.

Bond Offerings of Week Lowered

Bond offerings this week fell off $126,000,000, new issues totaling $67,000,000 compared with $174,653,000 last week. The total for the same week in 1929 was $61,081,000.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

GIVE FACTS

R. R., Worcester—What is your opinion of a purchase of General Motors? Are earnings good?

Ans.—The first quarter of current year General Motors earned 98 cents a share, against dividends of 75 cents. For corresponding period in 1929 net profits were $1.37 a share. In 1929 earnings of $5.49 a share compare with $4.20 in 1928. The company has an excellent record of earnings and dividends, but the present status of the stock is observed because of uncertain conditions in the automobile industry. What securities have you? How much will you spend?

$4000 TO INVEST

Miss B. K., Boston—I am a middle-aged business woman, steadily employed. I have $4000 in a savings bank and want to invest $4000.

Ans.—That is sensible. There is nothing better than ready cash in emergencies, and $2000 is a nice reserve. Buy $2000 Low-Priced Title & Guarantee 5½s in 10 shares each Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred and Cities Service preferred. Here you have a total cost of $4000 and a combined annual income of $240.

ADVICE

M. I., Lowell—Do you consider United Fruit a good purchase for a long pull?

Ans.—If you want to buy stocks with the expectation that you can realize profits in a short time you can use your own judgment. We cannot advise on speculative issues. The first quarter dividends in varying amounts from organization in 1899; current annual $4 rate since 1926. For year ended December 31, 1929, earnings were $6.78 a share, compared with $8.54 in 1928, $7.45 in 1927 and $7.80 in 1926; in the first quarter of current year, $1.53 a share, compared with $2.27 for similar period of 1929. At recent levels the yield was 4.3 per cent.

Raskob Returns From Trip Abroad

New York, May 29—John J. Raskob, former chairman of finance committee of General Motors Corp., returned from a seven-weeks' trip abroad on the Leviathan, said his particular significance, and, contrary to reports, he was not acting in any capacity for Wm. Wood Brothers, with which company his name has been linked.

London Wool Sales to Close Tomorrow

London, May 29 (AP)—The wool sales were continued today. A moderate selection, amounting to 8146 bales, was offered and it was taken chiefly by home and German dealers at current rates. Competition for medium scoureds and lower grades was quieter. The sales will close tomorrow.

PLANS TO HIRE 15,000 IN NEXT TWO MONTHS

Chicago, May 29—Grigsby-Grunow Co. has announced plans which will provide employment for 15,000 additional people during the next two months. Beginning June 2 the company will employ 10,000 additional workers for production of new Majestic radio sets, which will start at a rate of 4000 a day and will entail the payroll running up to $2,000,000 a month.

When production starts in July on the new Majestic electric refrigerator, the Majestic Household Utilities Corp. will begin with initial force of 5000 employes, with payroll running around $1,000,000 a month. Number of additional men will be increased as the company steps up production.

President William C. Grunow said Majestic Household Utilities Corp. has spent $3,000,000 for new equipment.

APRIL PROFITS SET NEW PEAK

Chicago, May 29—National Standard Company directors have authorized the construction of an additional plant at Los Angeles, Cal., it was announced today. W. F. Harrah, president, stated that the plant would add about 10,000 square feet to production facilities and construction would be started in the near future.

"The addition," he said, "is made necessary by our constantly expanding business in the Los Angeles territory, where it is believed that volume this year will run twice as great as in 1929."

Mr. Harrah said April earnings were the biggest of any month in the fiscal year which began Oct. 1, 1929.

"Despite the adverse conditions which prevailed in many sections," he continued, "the National Standard Co. earned its dividend requirements for the first seven months of the year by a comfortable margin. Profits have maintained a consistently upward trend. April was our best month and May sales have run about 10 per cent ahead of April.

"The outlook for the future is decidedly promising, and I believe the final quarter of our current fiscal year—the months of July, August and September—will approach, if not actually exceed, the best in the company's history."

June's Corporate Maturities Heavy

Corporate maturities for June, 1930, are comparatively heavy, but will furnish little new financing as many have already been provided for by new issues and a large number will be paid off out of treasury funds. Total of bonds and notes falling due will be $43,305,940, against $70,062,690 in May, and $124,582,630 in June, 1929.

In addition to corporation maturities, $16,210,000 foreign obligations fall due in June, making the combined total $156,585,940. The foreign maturities are composed entirely of Canadian government and municipal loans, largest of which is City of Toronto's sinking fund $5,500,000 4 per cent loan due June 1.

Canadian Utility Merger Announced

Montreal, May 29—Jamaica Public Service Co. has acquired St. James Utilities, comprising electric light, power and ice business carried on at Montego Bay, Jamaica. Montego Bay is the principle city of the island from Kingston, and is the second largest town in Jamaica. A modern Diesel plant is operated. It is understood negotiations are under way for purchase of electric light facilities at another point on the island. Financing to take care of developments and other extensions the past year or two will be undertaken shortly.

Steel Tonnage Is Ahead of Prices

American Metal Market says the apparent anomaly seen for weeks past of steel tonnage doing much better than steel prices is even more pronounced now. While there are only occasional outright declines, steel prices have no stamina and there is much shading in certain lines supposed to represent the market. Actually, general average of the market as quoted is about $2 a ton below the low point of late 1927 and 1928 and present or prospective stabilization cannot be regarded seriously.

HOOVER'S VETO FOR TARIFF IS EXPECTED

By B. C. FORBES.

Will President Hoover veto the tariff bill?

The opinion is growing that he will.

* * *

Before his election Mr. Hoover laid very great stress upon the importance of earning and maintaining the goodwill of other nations and upon the vital necessity for developing foreign trade in order to make prosperity possible in this country. On both subjects he used very emphatic language. He made it starkly clear that it would be economic madness for the United States to do anything which would tend to make foreign consumers less willing or less able to purchase American products, since our nation is being depended upon for finding foreign outlets for these products.

B. C. Forbes

* * *

How does the hocus-pocus tariff now before Congress harmonize with the principles and policies laid down by Mr. Hoover?

Could it have clashed more violently with these principles and policies if our politicians had purposely addressed themselves to the task of confounding and frustrating President Hoover?

More than 30 nations have voiced protests against the treatment threatened them under the Smoot-Hawley-Grundy tariff. The boycotting of American goods has been seriously proposed in Europe. Canada, our best customer, is incensed and plans retaliation, penalizing imports of American automobiles. Latin Americans are aroused. Virtually the whole world is up in arms against the United States.

* * *

Hostility is scarcely less acute at home. Trade and commerce in most parts of the country express bitter indignation. Manufacturers and consumers alike protest. Is it prudent should the tariff schemers get away with their hugger-mugger.

President Ludwig Stein of R. Suppenheimer & Co., Inc., the nationally-known clothing manufacturers, in the course of a lengthy letter to this column, writes:

"This letter is addressed to you in the hope that the weight of your expressed opinion may be placed behind the movement to urge the President to veto the tariff bill.

"The higher rates have already unleashed a torrent of retaliation which must ultimately become world-wide. With our tremendous production capacity, the prosperity of the United States largely depends on our ability to retain our foreign trade. We can hardly expect those nations to whom we make our largest export shipments to continue to import from us when we place prohibitive tariffs on the products of their manufacturers.

"Our present tariffs are sufficiently high to protect home industries. Further advance will serve only to advance the present cost of living.

"The board of governors of the Clothing Manufacturers Research Board has addressed the President urging him to preserve the future of foreign trade by vetoing the pending bill. Various economists—trained analysts, whose findings are usually accurate—have addressed him on the same subject.

"Similar expressions from the leaders of all industries would serve to ratify the President in his desire to act for the common good. I am appealing to you in the hope that you will accord an appeal to the heads of all large businesses.

"In my opinion, such a step on your part would immediately result in action from the business men and bodies who are most vitally interested in the welfare of the United States."

That's only one sample of many letters pouring in.

Department Store Sales Up 6 Per Cent

Washington, May 29—Department stores sales for April were 6 per cent larger than in the corresponding month of last year, according to reports to the federal reserve system from 659 stores in 267 cities.

The board explained the increase reflected in part the fact that the date of Easter, which was very early last year was very late this year.

$540,000 Order Is Made for Pipe Line

Youngstown, O May 29—Republic Steel Corp has received an order for 100 miles of 10-inch steel pipe, valued at $540,000.

New Low Record Set in Price of Silver as Chinese Sell

London, May 29 (AP)—Silver touched a new low record of 17 1-16 pence an ounce in the open market today due to selling by Chinese interests. Silver has been on the down grade for some time and since the adoption of the gold standard in India selling from that quarter has accelerated the decline. Occasional offerings also have been made by America, but the chief source of weakness has come from the direction of China.

N. E. HISTORY SERIES GOES ON N. B. C. CHAIN

Renowned Speakers for Tercentenary Broadcasts

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for the presentation of dramatic bits of New England history on the N. B. C. Network, starting next Tuesday night. The broadcasts will be given at 7:15 p. m. and will be under the direction of Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk law school. The first speaker will be Governor Frank G. Allen. Mayor James M. Curley will be heard on June 17. Other prominent speakers will follow. Dean Archer has been conducting a historical series for school children over the same network Friday mornings at 11:15. The new series will provide grownups of the country with a New England historical background prior to their visit to Massachusetts for the Tercentenary proceedings during the summer and fall.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Memorial Day, 1930—A Thought for Our Statesmen

They went away with a brave smile, with their mothers' parting kisses upon their cheeks. They lie now with the others in the Suresnes Cemetery near Paris.

Opposite the name of each, to live forever, is inscribed the record of a valorous death for a cause he believed to be holy. On each mother's heart is inscribed the wound of his loss to her.

She lives in a knowledge that did not come to him. She knows that the cause for which he gave his life — the immortal right of all peoples to be free—was cruelly dissipated by the scheming statesmen who employed his life and the lives of his compatriots as a means of collecting booty, not of distributing justice among the nations of the world.

This scene of the sorrowfully happy mothers will be depicted a thousandfold in the cemeteries of America tomorrow.

The statesmen should gaze upon it. Possibly it would convince them, if nothing else will, that they should never commit their country to an alliance which could cause these sons to be torn from mothers' breasts to fight the battles of foreign nations on foreign soil.

Honoring Our Heroic Dead

Memorial Day.

America will pause tomorrow at the bier of the men and women who consecrated their lives in successive wars to the establishment of independence, to the preservation of the Union and to the promotion of democracy.

The first wars were fought upon American soil. They gained freedom for us and they perpetuated the Republic which was created under freedom.

The last one saw us depart from our ancient moorings. It saw our soldiers leave our shores for the first time to engage in mighty battles across the sea in alliance with foreign nations.

They went under the stimulus of an holy inspiration. They sought no booty; they asked for none; they got none. At the crest of the cross they carried was the star of hope for oppressed peoples everywhere — the right of self-determination; the right of all peoples to work out their own destiny untrammeled by more powerful and more selfish nations.

It was the one war in which America has participated in which the aim it sought has not been achieved. The flags of the victor nations fly today over more subjugated people than at any other time in world history. Democracy went out the door as dictators came in. America's sublime purpose was trampled under foot by ruthless diplomats who craved coal and oil fields, corridors to the sea, new territories to exploit.

New England takes a peculiarly appropriate interest in Memorial Day. The pennants of the Colonial, Union, the war with Spain, and American Expeditionary armies will be placed upon many a grave in the white cemeteries nestling on the hillsides. With each one a devout prayer should be offered that American statesmen will be given enough sense to keep America free from any alliances with the Old World nations which made a mockery out of America's sacred motive in the last war.

East Boston Cars

The concern of Representative William H. Hearn over the continued use of what he terms as antiquated street cars in East Boston is quite easy to share. It is true, as he says, that the Gladstone St.-Orient Heights line operates through a densely populated area. The school children, if no others, are entitled to every protection which modern equipment can afford.

The Elevated has had its serious problems and is catching up with them nobly.

Under public operation it has made strides which the old system of private operation never could have attained. But it is not asking too much of the public trustees to turn their immediate attention to that section of the city which depends so largely upon efficient and safe railway transportation.

Bishop Cassidy

Hearty congratulations to the Rt. Rev. James Edwin Cassidy, D. D., titular bishop of Ibora and auxiliary bishop of Fall River. We shall always think of him most affectionately as plain "Father" Cassidy, dauntless champion of the Fall River mill workers in their struggles for a living wage and for improved working conditions.

Righteous Protest

The Jews of Boston should make their Faneuil Hall protest heard across the sea. A significantly important lesson can be learned by them and by all other Americans from Great Britain's ban upon immigration into Palestine. This country should beware of mandates and foreign alliances. Lincoln said that no people is good enough to rule another.

The Jews should not trust their cultural and historical renaissance to Great Britain any more than the United States should trust its fate to the tender mercies of any aggregation of selfish nations under the name of the League of Nations or the League Court.

Quiet Birthdays

Newspapers throughout the civilized world announced that the Queen observed the day "quietly."

The public is always glad to have this point cleared up. Persons of sixty or over usually turn a couple of handsprings, do a flip flop and chin themselves to mark the occasion. When they don't, but spend the day "quietly," it's news.

Chapter Two

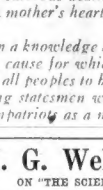
How Individuals Originate

Section One

Can Life Arise Spontaneously?

We have asserted already, several times that all life derives from preceding life. But we have given very little to sustain that assertion. Here we will deal rather more fully with this very important issue.

Our proposition is that life is a branching tree. We want to dispose of the possibility that it is several branching trees or that new life-trees have or can originate.



H. G. Wells

We have to answer the question whether under existing conditions living things may not still be able to arise from lifeless material.

Right down to the middle of the last century it was thought, even by many biologists, that living creatures could at once arise "spontaneously." It was believed in not as a miracle, a rare and occasional wonder of nature, but as a fact of everyday experience. The swarm of busy maggots that appears whenever anything is left to decay was supposed to be directly generated from the putrefying material.

In antiquity it was supposed that frogs and reptiles could be generated out of mud and slime. Virgil in the Georgics gives a recipe for producing bees from the carcass of an ox; and Samson's riddle (Judges XIV) seems based on a similar misconception.

"Out of the eater came forth meat and out of the strong came forth sweetness."

It was a perfectly natural and reasonable error in the days when the habit of interrogative observation had not yet been developed. But the Bible narrator has gone a little beyond the possibilities of the case by adding a honeycomb to the story.

It was not until the seventeenth century that Redi exploded the belief that blowflies and their maggots are produced by decaying meat itself. He marked the blowfly at its work. When he prevented flies from having access to the meat by covering it with gauze no maggots were generated. It was a simple, clear-cut experiment, and yet no one had previously displayed the intelligent scepticism needed to attempt it.

By the seventeenth century the discovery of the microscope had opened up a new world of living creatures, whose life-histories were hard to trace out owing to their complicated life-cycles, to their minuteness and their liability to be blown from place to place in a condition of nearly suspended life. These creatures had an air of turning up out of nothingness. Thus they were supposed to be "spontaneously generated."

In the middle of the 19th century the genius of Pasteur, with a combination of rigorous experiment and patient perseverance, finally clinched the matter and proved that all visible living things, at any rate in the conditions which now obtain in nature, arise only from others of the same sort.

Soups and such-like infusions were up to his time supposed to be natural environments for spontaneous generation.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, May 29—Blackmailing lawyers—and New York has passed its quota—use a threat of publicity as a leverage for shakedowns. And yet in nearly all the filmsy cases where victims refuse to be bluffed it is seldom their names are dragged across the front pages.

The first move of a crooked lawyer to terrorize is to send anonymous tips to news agencies that so-and-so has been sued. As a matter of routine the agency calls up the victim. This is, of course, alarming but means nothing. Respectable newspapers do not lend themselves to hi-jacking.

Hundreds of trumped-up extortions get no further than a news editor who promptly tosses them in the waste basket. Most men and women who submit to extortive efforts do so to protect the innocent, a foolish gesture. Even if scandalized by headlines it is a few hours' sensation. The public quickly forgets.

A famous comedian of 20 years ago was involved in one of the reddest scandals Broadway ever knew. A year ago he happened to pass a group at a cafe table. One of the party mentioned the affair. Seven out of the eight other Broadwaywise had no remembrance of it.

Indeed, a writing gentleman has compiled a long list of names of those who were notoriously publicized in thick 8-column streamers during the past decade. During their ordeal, they were discussed pro and con almost everywhere.

Among them— and how many do you identify?—were. Ceey Snead, Joyce Hawley, Robert Reid, Joseph Robin, Mary Fagan, Bruce Ismay, Herman Koehl, Wilbur Huston, Caesar Young, Harold Bride, Fred Beauvis, Alice Jones, Clarence W. T. Richeson, Constantin Dumbs, Vera Cathcart and Mary Louise Spas.

Nothing achieves such sudden prominence and nothing vanishes so miraculously as scandal. But swollen ugly headlines will likely strike terror so long as human nature is what is is. And that is why blackmail flourishes. Blackstone said years ago: "Only a fool pays a blackmailer."

One of my dad's favorite stories concerned the Texas judge addressing a Mexican accused of horse theft.

"Manuel Jose Santos," he stoned in a dreamy voice, "in a few weeks spring will be upon us. The snows and ice will vanish and roses will perfume the glorious air. Earth will witness its annual miracle of transformation. All nature will be glad. But you, Manuel Jose Santos, you yellow-bellied greaser, will not be here to see it, because you hang three weeks from today. Court's adjourned."

The most beautiful bit of apocalyptic prose—and its source is unknown to me—I have read lately is:

"Before the eyes can see they must be incapable of tears. Before the ear can hear it must have lost its sensitiveness. Before the voice can speak, it must have lost its power to wound. Before the soul can stand in the presence of the Master, its feet must be washed in the blood of the heart."

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

You Live Alone

Once upon a time I made a curious discovery. I discovered that I must always live alone.

At first I could not believe this fact. I had already spent many years surrounded by people — my family and friends, my husband, my son. There was every prospect that I would live with these, and other people, until the end of my days. And yet, I discovered that I actually I had always lived alone and would continue to do so! For though my eyes saw people and my hands touched people and my ears heard people, my real life was something apart from people. People went on outside me. But my real life went on inside me. People could and did affect the outside things of my life. But I alone was responsible for the inside things of my life. Alone, in the cloistered places of my own spirit, I must meet the real issues of life

And this was an amazing thing to me, because I had always expected people to help me. I thought that that was what love and friendship meant. I thought my parents should understand me. I thought my husband should make me happy. I thought my friends should share their strength with me, as I expected to share my strength with them.

I not only expected these things, but I was mad when they didn't happen. For, of course, they never had happened, as I thought they should. Love I had had, and some understanding and much help. But none of it had gone as far as I thought it should go. None of it had seemed to get into the deepest places in my heart.

But gradually I came to see that no one was any better off than I was. No one was ever thoroughly understood—and no love, however great, could go to the roots of one's being. No father or mother, or husband or lover or friend could ever solve one's mysteries—or fight one's battles. Each person had to do that for himself.

And at first I felt very bitter at life because this was so. I thought that such aloneness made life a shallow and tragic affair.

But presently I began to see that life was really a much more proud and gallant adventure because of this fact. For what was victory worth unless we achieved it ourselves? And why should we expect people to understand us or fight our battles when they had their hands full with their own muddles and mysteries?

And now I saw that no one had really harmed me. I had been expecting the impossible—demanding service to which I had no right, and which would have actually crippled my spirit if it could have been given to me.

And suddenly I felt free. Very lonely but very free. Like a bird that has at last left the nest and flung itself into the endless air. It may meet, on its passage, many other birds. It may work with them, mate with them, play with them—but always it will fly on its own free wings—alone with the sky and God.
